Astronomical Monuments.

The Virginia City (Nevada) Enterprise gives the following account of one of the pillars being set up by one of the exploring expeditions in the Western Territories: "The place selected is the exact apex of a high hill about two hundred yards east of the Imperial Empire Hoisting Works. The monument is being set up by W. W. Maryatt, astronomer in charge of one of the astronomical parties of the Wheeler United States expedition. The stone constituting the monument was cut at the Nevada State Prison. It weighs two tons, and is six feet in height. The base is two and one-half feet square, and the apex two feet square.—On one side is the following inscription: 'United States meridian and latitude mark explorations west of 100th meridian, War Department.' On the opposite side are blanks for latitude and longitude when they shall have been ascertained. Mr. Maryatt has with him three men. They were yesterday engaged in digging a hole in the solid lava forming the peak of the hill. This morning they expected to obtain the assistance of fifteen or twenty men from the Imperial Empire to lower the stone into its place. When the monument shall have been made perfectly firm a floor will be laid around it, and a large tent erected over all, thus forming a temporary astronomical and meteorological observatory. We learn that it is proposed here to conduct a series of elaborate observations for the purpose of establishing the exact latitude and longitude, and also the exact altitude of the astronomical monument. The site of this astronomical monument and observing pier was located by Major Weiss during his topographical surveys in and about this place some weeks ago, and it is considered the best and most convenient for the use for which it is intended that is to be found in the neighborhood. The monument will serve while observations are being taken, as a pedastal to the telescope employed, and will afterward remain as a point of geographical reference. Mr. Maryatt will probably begin his observations in three or four days. While at work he will be in direct telegraphic communication with J. H. Clark, the astronomer in charge of a similar observatory situated in Temple-square, Salt Lake City. Mr. Maryatt is supplied with a full set of instruments, and while here will be observing for the exact time. As we have never yet had the exact time here, it will be well for some of our jewelers to make use of this opportunity of getting it. This will be the third monument of the kind Mr. Maryatt has established this season, and he expects to construct two others—one in Idaho and one in Montana. He finds our atmosphere most favorable for astronomical observations, and says that he can see the rings of Saturn quite as distinctly here with his small telescope as they can be seen from the observatory at Chicago, where is one of the largest telescopes in the United States."

Fattening Chickens.

It is hopeless to attempt to fatten chickens while they are at liberty. They must be put in a proper coop; and this, like most other poultry appurtenances, need not be expensive. To fatten twelve fowls, a coop may be three feet long, eighteen inches high, and eighteen inches deep, made entirely of bars. No part solid—neither top, sides or bottom. Discretion must be used, according to the size of the chickens put up. They do not want room; indeed, the closer they are the better—provided they can all stand up at the same time.—Care must be taken to put up such as have been accustomed to be together, or they will fight. If one is quarrelsome, it is better to remove it at once, as, like other bad examples, it soon finds imitators. A diseased chicken should not be put up. The food sho'd be ground oats; and may either be put up in a trough or on a flat board running along the front of the coop. It may be mixed with water or milk—the latter is the better. It should be well soaked, forming a pulp as loose as can be, provided it does not run off the board.—They must be well fed three or four times a day—the first time as soon after daybreak as may be possible or convenient, and then at intervals of four hours. Each meal should be as much and no more than they can eat up clean. When they have done feeding, the board should be wiped, and some gravel may be spread. It causes them to feed and thrive. After a fortnight of this treatment, you will have good, fat fowls. If, however, there are but five or six to be fattened, they must not have as much room as though there were twelve. Nothing is easier than to allow them them the proper space, as it is only necessary to have two or three pieces of wood to pass between the bars and form a partition. This may also serve when fowls are put up at different degrees of fatness. This requires attention, or fowls will not keep fat and healthy.—As soon as the fowl is sufficiently fatted, it must be killed, otherwise it will not get fatter, but will lose flesh. If fowls are intended for the market, of course they are or may be all fatted at once; but if for home consumption, it is better to put them up at such intervals as will suit the time when they will be required for the table.—Journal of Chemistry.

The New Flowing Oil Wells.

The eight large wells recently struck on the Starr and Troutman farms are represented to exceed in average production anything known within so limited an area since the early days of Pithole. The Titusville (Penn.) Herald says: "The first of these wells is the Troutman, struck last Spring, which started up at about 600 barrels, and is now doing about 450. There are now seven other wells in this immediate vicinity doing respectively all the way from 500 to 1,300 barrels per day. Their names are as follows: The Boyer well, 700 barrels; the two Satterfield & Taylor Wells, 600 barrels each; the Percy & Beck well, 600 barrels; the Thompson & Harley well, 950. The Dean's well, struck last Saturday, is doing 1,300 barrels. The last of the eight is the Capt. Gracie well, struck last week, doing about 700 barrels. There are seventy-four more wells now going down in this vicinity, within a radius of about a quarter to half a mile, which will be finished within the next thirty days. The best informed judges place the present production of the region at 30,000 barrels per day. The excess is being rapidly brought up at low figures by speculators, who believe that a reaction must eventually ensue. It is highly probable that oil will be very cheap for some time, but how cheap no one can tell. The pool of oil which has been struck will, owing to the large number of wells sunk over it, unquestionably, like its predecessors, become rapidly exhausted, and the low price will discourage new developements and have a tendency to shut down many of the smaller wells. Meanwhile the heavy shipments of cheap oil to Europe will open up new channels of trade. The demand will in future be increased in proportion, and a reaction with high prices will, judging from past experience, not diminish the demand. China and Japan are now taking considerable oil, and this trade, which is comparitively new, can be pushed to an almost unlimited extent. The present sudden and unlooked for increase or our product, with resultant low prices, will therefore, in the long run, be likely to prove advantageous to the interests of the region."

Offenbach is said to put on airs.

"Boston, Oct. 25, 1869.

I own Appletons' Cyclopaedia, and use it constantly. It should be in every library, public and private—I would say in every house, within reach of every family. The young should use it. CHARLES SUMNER."

"I use the 'New American Cyclopaedia' every day, generally many times a day. I think it the best work of the kind in existence. It is singularly well suited to families. The children who grow up in a house where there is a copy of it within reach, can hardly escape becoming well-informed persons. I value it very highly, and am glad of this opportunity of testifying my gratitude. JAMES PARTON."

Astronomical Monuments.

The Virginia City (Nevada) Enterprise gives the following account of one of the pillars being set up by one of the exploring expeditions in the Western Territories: "The place selected is the exact apex of a high hill about two hundred yards east of the Imperial Empire Hoisting Works. The monument is being set up by W. W. Maryatt, astronomer in charge of one of the astronomical parties of the Wheeler United States expedition. The stone constituting the monument was cut at the Nevada State Prison. It weighs two tons, and is six feet in height. The base is two and one-half feet square, and the apex two feet square.—On one side is the following inscription: 'United States meridian and latitude mark explorations west of 100th meridian, War Department.' On the opposite side are blanks for latitude and longitude when they shall have been ascertained. Mr. Maryatt has with him three men. They were yesterday engaged in digging a hole in the solid lava forming the peak of the hill. This morning they expected to obtain the assistance of fifteen or twenty men from the Imperial Empire to lower the stone into its place. When the monument shall have been made perfectly firm a floor will be laid around it, and a large tent erected over all, thus forming a temporary astronomical and meteorological observatory. We learn that it is proposed here to conduct a series of elaborate observations for the purpose of establishing the exact latitude and longitude, and also the exact altitude of the astronomical monument. The site of this astronomical monument and observing pier was located by Major Weiss during his topographical surveys in and about this place some weeks ago, and it is considered the best and most convenient for the use for which it is intended that is to be found in the neigbborhood. The monument will serve while observations are being taken, as a pedastal to the telescope employed, and will afterward remain as a point of geographical reference. Mr. Maryatt will probably begin his observations in three or four days. While at work he will be in direct telegraphic communication with J. H. Clark, the astronomer in charge of a similar observatory situated in Temple-square, Salt Lake City. Mr. Maryatt is supplied with a full set of instruments, and while here will be observing for the exact time. As we have never yet had the exact time here, it will be well for some of our jewelers to make use of this opportunity of getting it. This will be the third monument of the kind Mr. Maryatt has established this season, and he expects to construct two others—one in Idaho and one in Montana. He finds our atmosphere most favorable for astronomical observations, and says that he can see the rings of Saturn quite as distinctly here with his small telescope as they can be seen from the observatory at Chicago, where is one of the largest telescopes in the United States."

Fattening Chickens.

It is hopeless to attempt to fatten chickens while they are at liberty. They must be put in a proper coop; and this, like most other poultry appurtenances, need not be expensive. To fatten twelve fowls, a coop may be three feet long, eighteen inches high, and eighteen inches deep, made entirely of bars. No part solid—neither top, sides or bottom. Discretion must be used, according to the size of the chickens put up. They do not want room; indeed, the closer they are the better—provided they can all stand up at the same time.—Care must be taken to put up such as have been accustomed to be together, or they will fight. If one is quarrelsome, it is better to remove it at once, as, like other bad examples, it soon finds imitators. A diseased chicken should not be put up. The food sho'd be ground oats; and may either be put up in a trough or on a flat board running along the front of the coop. It may be mixed with water or milk—the latter is the better. It should be well soaked, forming a pulp as loose as can be, provided it does not run off the board.—They must be well fed three or four times a day—the first time as soon after daybreak as may be possible or convenient, and then at intervals of four hours. Each meal should be as much and no more than they can eat up clean. When they have done feeding, the board should be wiped, and some gravel may be spread. It causes them to feed and thrive. After a fortnight of this treatment, you will have good, fat fowls. If, however, there are but five or six to be fattened, they must not have as much room as though there were twelve. Nothing is easier than to allow them them the proper space, as it is only necessary to have two or three pieces of wood to pass between the bars and form a partition. This may also serve when fowls are put up at different degrees of fatness. This requires attention, or fowls will not keep fat and healthy.—As soon as the fowl is sufficiently fatted, it must be killed, otherwise it will not get fatter, but will lose flesh. If fowls are intended for the market, of course they are or may be all fatted at once but if for home consumption, it is better to put them up at such intervals as will suit the time when they will be required for the table.—Journal of Chemistry.

The New Flowing Oil Wells.

The eight large wells recently struck on the Starr and Troutman farms are represented to exceed in average production anything known within so limited an area since the early days of Pithole. The Titusville (Penn.) Herald says: "The first of these wells is the Troutman, struck last Spring, which started up at about 600 barrels, and is now doing about 450. There are now seven other wells in this immediate vicinity doing respectively all the way from 500 to 1,300 barrels per day. Their names are as follows: The Boyer well, 700 barrels; the two Satterfield & Taylor Wells, 600 barrels each; the Percy & Beck well, 600 barrels; the Thompson & Harley well, 950. The Dean's well, struck last Saturday, is doing 1,300 barrels. The last of the eight is the Capt. Gracie well, struck last week, doing about 700 barrels. There are seventy-four more wells now going down in this vicinity, within a radius of about a quarter to half a mile, which will be finished within the next thirty days. The best informed judges place the present production of the region at 30,000 barrels per day. The excess is being rapidly brought up at low figures by speculators, who believe that a reaction must eventually ensue. It is highly probable that oil will be very cheap for some time, but how cheap no one can tell. The pool of oil which has been struck will, owing to the large number of wells sunk over it, unquestionably, like its predecessors, become rapidly exhausted, and the low price will discourage new developements and have a tendency to shut down many of the smaller wells. Meanwhile the heavy shipments of cheap oil to Europe will open up new channels of trade. The demand will in future be increased in proportion, and a reaction with high prices will, judging from past experience, not diminish the demand. China and Japan are now taking considerable oil, and this trade, which is comparitively new, can be pushed to an almost unlimited extent. The present sudden and unlooked for increase or our product, with resultant low prices, will therefore, in the long run, be likely to prove advantageous to the interests of the region."

Offenbach is said to put on airs.

"I thank you for the opportunity of expressing my opinion of the great value of the 'NEW AMERICAN' and 'ANNUAL CYCLOPÆDIA.' I own the work and have2 with me here, and am in the habit of consulting it every day to my very great advantage. It is most admirable. J. L. MOTLEY,

"Boston, Oct. 25, 1869.

I own Appletons' Cyclopaedia, and use it constantly. It should be in every library, public and private—I would say in every house, within reach of every family. The young should use it. CHARLES SUMNER."

"I use the 'New American Cyclopaedia' every day, generally many times a day. I think it the best work of the kind in existence. It is singularly well suited to families. The children who grow up in a house where there is a copy of it within reach, can hardly escape becoming well-informed persons. I value it very highly, and am glad of this opportunity of testifying my gratitude. JAMES PARTON."

The Brooklyn Argus drops the following powerful pun upon our table: "Hon. Samuel Bowles, of the Springfield Republican, is talked of for Mayor of that city. Such a Mayor as Sam would make, might reasonably be rated as a whole team." The Argus has a hundred eyes, we have but two. The Argus can see where the laugh comes in without straining itself, other people run the same risk as the New Orleans editors when they hang their Shreveport exchanges on a clothes line and read them from a distance, the risk of getting a bad bulge on good eyes.

The Modocs have gone with one leap from this world of care and civilization into the happy hunting grounds of which they have heard through the traditions of their fathers. Their noble spirits would not thank us for any tears in which we might indulge on their account. They were as well prepared to go as it is likely they ever would be. Captain Jack and his dauntless co-savages have reaped a full harvest of scalps and bathed their dusky hands in the blood of many enemies, both white and red. These feats of aboriginal manliness will procure for them first-class tickets of admission to the "equal sky," where, let us hope, their "faithful dogs may bear them company."

To be Sure.

A certain good old Bishop once wrote a book on "The Embarrassment of The Deity as to the Necessity of Creating a Female." However unfortunate this necessity may have been there was apparently no getting rid of it. Since her creation woman's place in society and politics has been an endless question.—Now that a more modern Bishop (Simpson) and "other clergy" have combined with the ladies themselves to settle the business in convention, we expect soon to be able to announce a perfect harmony in the universe. Kate Field is hopeful, even enthusiastic, and we all know how conservative Kate is. As Kate Frenchily remarks, so say we, Place aux dames.

The Supreme Court Judgeship.

Among the offices to be filled at the coming election is that of Supreme Court Judge for this district, consisting of the counties of Ulster, Greene, Sullivan, Schoharie, Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia. Prominent men are named on both the Democratic and Republican sides and the convention of each party will meet this week to nominate the candidates. It is idle to speculate as to who they will be when only a few days will determine the matter.

There is one claim that we wish to urge upon both conventions. Ulster is hardly second to any county in the district, and in population and extent of business, legal and commercial, is immeasurably ahead of five out of the seven counties. Her population is 84,000, and that of her chief city 20,000. Her commercial trade is immense, while her freighting, quarrying and manufacturing interests furnish a large number of cases for legal adjudication. Yet Ulster has had no judge since Judge Wright's time, and to-day her lawyers have to travel scores of miles to transact business that should be done in her limits. It is but simple justice to Ulster county that the Supreme Court Judge to be selected this year should be located in this county. Albany already has a judge, and Rensselaer has one, and these are the only counties in the district that can with the least show of reason dispute the claim with Ulster, while to give either two would be rank injustice so long as she is deprived of one. Columbia, with a population and importance vastly less, also has one, while it would take nearly all three remaining counties to match Ulster. The two conventions then can do no less than to each nominate an Ulster county lawyer, and thus give us a Supreme Court judge beyond a peradventure.

What Do You Trust?

If the spirit of Satire does not glut itself with prey in these days the soul of Rabelais will be uneasy in heaven. The varnish of decency and the verbal overcoat of honesty are so slazy and thin over the most gigantic humbugs and absurdities, that the dullest wit has hope of many a laugh, and the most sluggish moral sense a chance to indulge its fullest capacity for contempt. Art is not doing much but caricature is full of business. The man who, like little Tommy Nast, can thresh prevailing sins and popular lies with a pencil is sure of plenty of such money as there is. Men of brains don't believe in much of anything this year. To be sure they pretend to, but their public expression is one thing and their private opinion is another. The age is faithless, and the cynic is justified in his sneer at most of the organizations now in existence.—Stealings and frauds in the churches, stealings and frauds among the financiers, stealings and frauds in the government, misstatements and lies in political platforms, patent virtues among the authors of them whose final intention is to profit by the credulity of the fools who believe in them, think of it!

The cry is "Free Trade and Farmers' Rights;" once it was Free Trade and Sailors' Rights, and if the little rag-tag and bob-tail merchants of the street were strong enough to get up a revolution we should hear some convention singing out "Free Trade and Bootblack's Rights." Ah, what a thing is the pious slaver of the partisan anaconda, and what a loving snake he is! Our friend of the World will now conclude with an appropriate ascription, which we quote. It succeeds the names of the platform committee of the "regenerate and re-invigorated Democracy:" "Worthy to lead the Roll of Honor are these names of the noble Democrats who have taken their places in the van of that Army of Progress which is now gathering to go up and possess the land."

If Deacon Pogram didn't write that it was at least produced by somebody hailing from Confederate X Roads, "wich is in the state of Kentucky."

The English Republic In Passe.

The "whirligig of time," says some one, "brings strange revenges." About one hundred years since, Jefferson and a few other daring spirits, hardly knowing at the time whether they would be fully seconded by the people or not, challenged the throne of Great Britain to show reason why America should not be free and independent. Through a struggle of eight years which has become historical, abroad as well as at home, for the high convictions of conscience and right which animated its prime movers even more than for the continuance and desperation of their efforts in arms, that coveted freedom was at last secured. The years and decades have slowly passed in dim but sure procession. The ringing voice of Patrick Henry and James Otis have left no echo on the air, and the sword of Washington is covered with the rust of time. Commerce and a literature in one language have obliterated the passions, the jealousies and the hatreds of that era. Americans have got rich in London and Englishmen are scattered all over our land and supported by the fruits of a soil which their fathers once insisted on possessing and taxing. Had Great Britain been less greedy in the days of the Colonies and less insanely careful for small things, she might have been wealthier to-day to the extent of the value of North America. But, perdere prius dementat," and so from lack of good sense, foresight and moderation the prize slipped out of her covetous fingers. Now is the hour of revenge for us.—Not in remembrance of the atrocities of hireling soldiery in the Revolution alone, but for the injustice of 1812, the insulting taunts flung at us over the puny shoulders of Mason and Slidell, the escapade of the Alabama, and for every domineering tone and act since the tax on tea. This revenge will shed no blood nor burn any villages or cities. It is peaceful as a falling snowflake and complete as a stroke of lightning. It comes to us in the form of an appeal made to this nation to sympathize with and help, so far as the nature of the case will permit, the masses of the English people who are perishing through lack of a fair division of land with authority to use and hold it. Mr. Bradlaugh, who represents the mechanics, operatives and miners of England, made this appeal in Steinway Hall last Friday night in eloquent and fitting words. We agree with him that the question is not as to England becoming a republic finally, but as to her becoming so before the people understand what that word implies. And this possible state of things the conservative landed aristocracy of the realm will themselves precipitate unless they soon consent to some legal provision for the amelioration of the condition of the poor. "We have prostrated ourselves at the foot of the throne," wrote Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence. It is recorded that the supplicant was kicked for his pains. "All other counsel failing, we besought aid from America," will be the coming statement of the new republic of England. "It was given freely as it was solicited" will be written concerning the application. That were indeed a revenge worthy the descendants of the men of '76; to see a despised republic reproduce its kind in a nation that once sought its annihilation. "The mills of the gods grind slow but they grind fine."

"Droop, Flag and Pennant!"

On Saturday the James W. Baldwin, the M. Martin and the Eagle all had their colors at half-mast, as a token of respect to the bereaved family of Captain Tremper, whose eldest child, Mrs. Hoffman, lay dead, after suffering untold agony. To us there is an indescribable feeling of sadness at sight of the half-masted ensign, and when it waves mournfully in the wind for one who commenced the journey of life with us, how forcibly we are reminded that "all flesh is grass;" but as the crimson stripes, typical of His all cleansing blood, and the white, a faint emblem of His purity, ripple in the breeze, disclosing the blue with its stars of hope, we think of how the feet that ached and bled beneath their load have been tenderly gathered to the care of the all Good Father who takes us to his rest after our wandering through doubts and fears have caused.

"The blue of our summer sky
Is dim and pallid to theirs;
The old horror faded away,
And glory all unawares."

To the little ones who have lost a mother's love and tender care, to the husband, the parents and the brothers, we can only say, "and of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

THIERS' STRATEGY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A special to the World dated London, Oct. 5th, says Thiers has given consent to the proposed alliance between the Republicans and Imperialists as the only means of preventing a restoration of the monarchy with Count Chambord as Henri V. The party is constantly receiving new accessions to the ranks, nevertheless the chances so far favor the monarchists, who have a majority in the Assembly, the entire army and abundance of money, with which they have been bribing weak and ambitious politicians. M. Rouher has been promised a baronetcy immediately after the restoration, which may now be considered sure to come about soon after the Assembly convenes. That Thiers should have consented at last to an alliance with the imperialists is regarded as evidence of the rapid strides which the monarchial cause have been making and the urgent necessity for immediate measures to preserve the now tottering republic.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

There was an immense audience at the Academy of Music to-night. Felix Bruno presided. Dean Canterbury in the opening prayer pleaded that all the walls of separation between churches might be broken down. Rev. Dr. Knox, of Ireland, made an eloquent appeal that all would abide in Christ. Rev. Norajon Sheshadra, of Bombay, gave an account of the founding of a Christian colony in Bombay. Rev. Dr. Hoge, of Richmond, spoke of union in the Saviour as the bond of the Alliance. Rev. Mr. Freemantle, of London, and Rev. Dr. Carlin, of Geneva, made short addresses.

Rev. Dr. Stephenson, of Dublin, asked the prayers of the Alliance for Ireland. Rev. P. Lorrianer, of Paris, spoke of the spread of evangelical principles in France, and stated that a French Catholic Senator and Catholic Archbishop both sent for a Protestant bible and minister before being executed by the Communists.

Rev. Dr. Biggs, of London, believed there was an upheaving of hearts pinioned by Romanism. General Fisk, of St. Louis, said if these meetings continue, all distinctions of creed will be battered down. Charles Reade, Member of the English Parliament, made a few remarks, and Dr. McCosh gave the benediction.

A meeting similar to that at the Academy of Music was held at Steinway Hall. The speeches were in German. The large hall was crowded, while a large number of persons lined the sidewalks outside.

The Dean of Canterbury spoke to-day at the Church of the Ascension on the desirability of union among Protestant denominations. He said that notwithstanding sectarian differences the basis on which Protestant denominations are established is the same, and he thought the present Evangelical Alliance would tend powerfully to give them harmony of action, especially in missionary labor.

At University Place Presbyterian Church Rev. Mr. Sheshadra discoursed on the condition of Christianity in that country.

EXECUTION OF THE MODOCS.

All Make Speeches.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—At 11 o'clock Thursday General Wheaton had a talk with the Indians, in the guard house. Jack, who by the by looked considerably worn and pulled down by close confinement for the past two or three months, took a seat on the end of the bunk, and old Schonchin sat down on his right, huddled up in his blanket. Both of these modest braves were shackled at the feet, and had rather a wild and nervous appearance, as if very anxious about their future. Boston Charley and Black Jim, who were shackled together, sat down on the left of Jack, the former on the edge of the bank, and the latter on the floor, with his back to the wall. Buckskin Doctor and Pete, two of the Lost River murderers, sat next to Black Jim, with Barncho and Slolux on their left, and Long Jim on the extreme right. Young Schonchin sat on the bunk on the right of his father, and the Curly-Headed Doctor, Dave and another of the Lost River murderers were squatted along the wall on the right of the semi-circle. The whole party were very fidgety, and although they had learned from outside sources that six of them were going to be hanged, they had received no official notification of their approaching doom. After the general had taken his seat the post chaplain walked into the middle of the circle and delivered an address to the condemned, which closed as follows:

I have to tell you all that the great father in Washington has decided that to-morrow you must all die for your sins, and the Great Spirit also tells you that if you repent and show sorrow for the crimes you have committed you will go to the happy land.

He then stepped up and shook hands with them all, adding: "I hope to meet you all in the happy land above." When these remarks were translated by Dave Hill the captives evinced considerable interest, and they were evidently striving hard to maintain composure, and they had a very stolid appearance, but the nervous twitching of the hands and restless wandering of their eyes showed that the blow struck hard. Boston Charley kept steadily chewing tobacco while the sentence was being spoken, and squirted juice about the floor in a nonchalant style, as if nothing of any importance was taking place. Schonchin expressed his contempt for the whole matter by laying back on the bunk and hawing in a most expressive manner, as if the entire proceedings were rather a farce. Jack appeared to take the news very coolly, but his bright and sparkling eyes appeared unusually brilliant and gazed around the circle in a quick and restless manner. The interpreter then informed them, by order of the president, that their wives and families would be taken good care of, also that Gen. Wheaton was now prepared to hear any remarks they had to make. Captain Jack then spoke as follows:

I have heard the sentence and know what it is, but I feel that I am more innocent than Bogus Charley, Hooker Jim, Steamboat Frank and Shacknasty Jim; that these men planned and instigated the crime of which I am accused. When I look into my heart I see no crime there. Young men started these murders.—It's hard to rid them of their savage habits. I was always in favor of peace, and Bogus Charley was the first to propose the murder of Gen. Canby and the peace commissioners. These young men were with him. I said no, but they had the power and carried me with them. We came near a personal difficulty. My life was in danger when Bogus Charley proposed killing Gen. Canby. Boston Charley was the one who first sanctioned it. Bogus Charley said, if you fail to help me I do it myself. I feel while these four men are at liberty they have triumphed over me, and the government should feel more satisfied if they were brought to trial, as they were as guilty, if not more so, than I am. I say that Bogus Charley was the only man who influenced me; he was a traitor to both sides.—He told lies to the Modocs, and lied to Gen. Canby. I should like to see him brought here. Hooker Jim and Bogus Charley were the men that agitated the murder. I want now to tell the truth. I want to see those men. I know that Shacknasty Jim killed Gen. Canby and shot Meacham, and Boston Charley killed Dr. Thomas. That is all I know about the massacre. Boston Charley says Shacknasty helped to kill Dr. Thomas, and he wants to see him tried as a murderer. Shacknasty told me that he told Gen. Wheaton he killed Gen. Canby, but I did not believe him. He said so after the massacre. Bogus Charley told me he knew blood was on his hands, and I would not be held accountable, as he was the real criminal. Bogus Charley wanted to kill both Gens. Canby and Gillem, and was very sorry that Gen. Gillem did not come out that day.

Jack begged for a reprieve. He was told, by order of General Wheaton, that the great law-makers of the government had carefully considered his case, and that the President's decision was final. Later, he renewed his attack on General Wheaton, urging that it would be quite proper for Scarfaced Charlie to take his place, and then his valuable services would be saved for his family and tribe. Gen. Wheaton then asked if any of the others had anything to say. Slolux spoke as follows:

I want to talk. People call me George. I have been confined in the guard-house through misrepresentations, and my child died yesterday, and I could not go with the mourners. Nobody here can say that he saw me at the scene of the massacre. I would like to know who were the witnesses against me. They told lies. I took no part in the massacre. I am confined here without cause.

Barncho said:

I am innocent. I want to go see the man confined, who really killed General Canby. I was some distance away when the killing was done.

They were then told that they were only charged with carrying arms to assist in the massacre and they both denied carrying arms at all. Black Jim then said:

I see a great many men present but have no talk to make as Captain Jack talks. I always tell the truth, and am well known among my people. Was wounded in the first fight at Lost river, and was very sick for many months and not on the war path. My heart tells me I am a good and strong man and able to take care of the Modocs. If Jack and Schonchin are killed I should then be left to take care of the Modocs. I do not know what Jack and Schonchin think about it. That's my idea, am afraid of nothing; and when it's war am always in the front rank. If I have been guilty of crime and the law of chiefs decides that I should die, I am willing to die, and am not afraid to die. I have been a long time confined in the guard house without even a chance to talk, and if we are to die I think we should make some arrangements for our spirits in the other world, and I would like to hear the spirit man talk.

Boston Charley then expressed a desire to talk, and said:

You all knew me during the war, but it seemed to me that I had two hearts—one Indian and the other white. I am a boy, yet you all know of what I am guilty. Although a boy, I feel like a man. When I look each side of me I think of those other men as women. I am not afraid to die. I think I am the only man in the room. I fought in the front rank with Shacknasty, Steamboat, Bogus and Hooker Jim. I am wholly a man, not half a woman. I killed General Canby, assisted by Steamboat Frank and Bogus. Bogus said, "Do you believe these Commissioners mean to try to make peace with us?" I said, "I believe so." He said, "I don't believe so; they want to lead us into some trap." I said, "All right; I go with you, Captain, and Anderson remembers when Bogus came into camp in the evening, and when I came in the morning. I would like to see all my people and bid them good-by to-day. I would like to go to the stockade. I feel that if I criminate other parties it would not amount to anything. I see it's too late now, that our chief men were not at the bottom of that affair, and they did not take such a prominent part in the massacre as the young men. I am young. I know but little. When I see anything with my eyes I know it.

Boston was then asked why they killed Canby and the commissioners. He said that all the presents they received had no influence on them, and they suspected Canby and the commissioners of treachery, and got up a big mad. Boston then made a long harangue in which he tried to show that Jack had no share in the massacre, and that he had worked very hard in keeping the young men quiet. He appeared to lay all the blame on Bogus, and also said that Bogus slept in the white camp the night before the massacre in order to disarm any suspicion. Schonchin was asked by order of General Wheaton if he had anything he wished to say. The old chief's eye lighted considerably at the prospect of talk and he made a sign in the affirmative. He presently commenced and spoke as follows, his speech being interpreted by Oliver Applegate and Dave Hill:

You all know me here. I was always a good man. There was a time when I did not want the white man here. I asked advice from white men. I sent my boy to Yinax reservation, and he chose a piece of land for his home. Boston Charley has told the truth when he called me a woman. I was like a woman, and opposed to war. I was always a peace man, but there were some young men that were over rash and anxious to do something to distinguish themselves. Hooker Jim and some other boys made all the trouble, and when I look at these irons on my feet and legs, I feel that they should wear them and not I. I have always given young men advice, shook hands with white people, and here I am now condemned with irons on my feet. I heard what the great spirit man had to say, and I think it good. I should not die for what others have done, but I will cross the river and will go to meet my father in the spirit land.

After the delivery of these speeches by the condemned, the post chaplain made a very solemn prayer for them, and the meeting broke up. The prisoners were shortly afterwards returned to their cells, and at 5 P. M. were visited by their families. This was the first meeting since the death warrant had been made public, and as it was to be the last before death separated them forever on this earth, it would naturally have been affecting, but we were perfectly unprepared for the frantic state of grief into which the women worked themselves. They howled their weird death song and threw themselves on their doomed friends, fawning them all over. Even the little children seemed to catch the infection, and they cried and wept in most fiendish style. Jack appeared very much affected at meeting his favorite squaw Lizzie and the little papoose. His sister Mary was even more affected, and worked herself into a perfect paroxysm of grief. The little girl even appeared to comprehend the situation, and sobbed bitterly as Jack gave her one last embrace. The squaws returned to the stockade, and the murderers were left in their cells. Old Schonchin met his family without much visible emotion, but his children cried bitterly, and the squaws yelled as if the world was coming to an end. The chief did not betray any outward signs of agitation.—He kissed his little son repeatedly, and when just before the retreat they were taken away, he laid down in his cell and rolled himself like a ball in his blanket. During the afternoon a number of soldiers and citizens went out to see the patent drop on which the Modocs are to be executed to-morrow.

THE EXECUTION.

JACKSONVILLE, Oregon, Oct. 4.—The following are the particulars of the execution of the Modoc Indians at Fort Klamath yesterday: Boston Charley and Black Jim were first led to the scaffold, Schonchin following. They manifested iron nerve, apparently resolved to die bravely as they lived. Capt. Jack went calmly to the scaffold, but looked abject and miserable. The irons had been taken off, but all were securely pinioned to the scaffold. Interpreters, Capt. Applegate and David Hill, explained to the Indians the nature of the order read them by the adjutant promulgating the sentence. The two reprieved Indians, Barncho and Slolux, were on the ground, ironed and under guard. During the reading, the condemned Indians remained seated on the platform of the drop, listening, but understanding nothing except as explained by interpreters. The chaplain then offered earnest prayer. At 10:15 A. M. the nooses were placed on the Indians' necks. It was found necessary to cut off part of Jack's long hair, which was in the way of the rope. Captain Hoge took the farewell of the prisoners; black caps were drawn over their faces, and at 10:20 the signal was given, the rope cut and the drop fell. Capt. Jack and Black Jim died easily, but Schonchin and Boston Charley were terribly convulsed, and repeatedly drew up their legs. As the drop fell a smothered cry of horror rose from the crowd of five hundred Klamath Indians. The wives and relatives of the condemned Modocs in the stockade, in full view of the execution, sent up howls and wails of anguish. Six coffins had been placed directly in rear of the gallows; two of them were unoccupied.—The order reprieving Barncho and Slolux only arrived at 10:30 the night before the execution, and preparations for their execution had also been made. Application was made by the sheriff of Jackson county, Oregon, to Gen. Wheaton for the custody of the Indians indicted by the Grand Jury, but was refused.

THE PARDONED INDIANS.

A Forth Klamath dispatch, dated yesterday, says Barncho and Slolux were perfectly delighted at getting reprieved this morning, and although their sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life, they will pass a pretty dull season at Alcatraz.

JAY COOKE & CO.

Proposed Basis of Settlement.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Jay Cooke & Co. have completed their detailed statement of assets and liabilities and prepared a form of agreement for settlement to be presented for their creditors' consideration. The main features of the proposal are as follows:

The members of the firm surrender all their partnership and individual property. A trustee, Hon. E. A. Rollins, late Commissioner of of Internal Revenue, has been chosen, with the approval of leading creditors, to manage the winding-up of the estate. Pro rata dividends will be made as fast as sufficient cash is realized from the conversion of assets, beginning very soon after the basis is approved of by the creditors. Settlements may be made with individual creditors, under restrictions which guard the rights of all. The trustee is to act under the advice and control of a committee of three prominent Philadelphia business men—S. M. Felton, late President of the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad, William C. Hanston of the Girard Bank, and Dell Noblitt, Jr., President of the Corn Exchange Bank. After all assessments are paid in full, the remaining estate will be reassigned.

It is understood the firm don't propose to call a general meeting of creditors, as they have been doing business in three different cities, and the creditors are so scattered as to render such a meeting impracticable. They will, however, address notes to such a number of their creditors in the three cities as can be conveniently seen from day to day at each point, and submit the papers with oral explanations. Three additional parties in this city have filed papers to have the firm declared bankrupt.

The Brooklyn Argus drops the following powerful pun upon our table: "Hon. Samuel Bowles, of the Springfield Republican, is talked of for Mayor of that city. Such a Mayor as Sam would make, might reasonably be rated as a whole team." The Argus has a hundred eyes, we have but two. The Argus can see where the laugh comes in without straining itself, other people run the same risk as the New Orleans editors when they hang their Shreveport exchanges on a clothes line and read them from a distance, the risk of getting a bad bulge on good eyes.

The Modocs have gone with one leap from this world of care and civilization into the happy hunting grounds of which they have heard through the traditions of their fathers. Their noble spirits would not thank us for any tears in which we might indulge on their account. They were as well prepared to go as it is likely they ever would be. Captain Jack and his dauntless co-savages have reaped a full harvest of scalps and bathed their dusky hands in the blood of many enemies, both white and red. These feats of aboriginal manliness will procure for them first-class tickets of admission to the "equal sky," where, let us hope, their "faithful dogs may bear them company."

To be Sure.

A certain good old Bishop once wrote a book on "The Embarrassment of The Deity as to the Necessity of Creating a Female." However unfortunate this necessity may have been there was apparently no getting rid of it. Since her creation woman's place in society and politics has been an endless question.—Now that a more modern Bishop (Simpson) and "other clergy" have combined with the ladies themselves to settle the business in convention, we expect soon to be able to announce a perfect harmony in the universe. Kate Field is hopeful, even enthusiastic, and we all know how conservative Kate is. As Kate Frenchily remarks, so say we, Place aux dames.

The Supreme Court Judgeship.

Among the offices to be filled at the coming election is that of Supreme Court Judge for this district, consisting of the counties of Ulster, Greene, Sullivan, Schoharie, Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia. Prominent men are named on both the Democratic and Republican sides and the convention of each party will meet this week to nominate the candidates. It is idle to speculate as to who they will be when only a few days will determine the matter.

There is one claim that we wish to urge upon both conventions. Ulster is hardly second to any county in the district, and in population and extent of business, legal and commercial, is immeasurably ahead of five out of the seven counties. Her population is 84,000, and that of her chief city 20,000. Her commercial trade is immense, while her freighting, quarrying and manufacturing interests furnish a large number of cases for legal adjudication. Yet Ulster has had no judge since Judge Wright's time, and to-day her lawyers have to travel scores of miles to transact business that should be done in her limits. It is but simple justice to Ulster county that the Supreme Court Judge to be selected this year should be located in this county. Albany already has a judge, and Rensselaer has one, and these are the only counties in the district that can with the least show of reason dispute the claim with Ulster, while to give either two would be rank injustice so long as she is deprived of one. Columbia, with a population and importance vastly less, also has one, while it would take nearly all three remaining counties to match Ulster. The two conventions then can do no less than to each nominate an Ulster county lawyer, and thus give us a Supreme Court judge beyond a peradventure.

What Do You Trust?

If the spirit of Satire does not glut itself with prey in these days the soul of Rabelais will be uneasy in heaven. The varnish of decency and the verbal overcoat of honesty are so slazy and thin over the most gigantic humbugs and absurdities, that the dullest wit has hope of many a laugh, and the most sluggish moral sense a chance to indulge its fullest capacity for contempt. Art is not doing much but caricature is full of business. The man who, like little Tommy Nast, can thresh prevailing sins and popular lies with a pencil is sure of plenty of such money as there is. Men of brains don't believe in much of anything this year. To be sure they pretend to, but their public expression is one thing and their private opinion is another. The age is faithless, and the cynic is justified in his sneer at most of the organizations now in existence.—Stealings and frauds in the churches, stealings and frauds among the financiers, stealings and frauds in the government, misstatements and lies in political platforms, patent virtues among the authors of them whose final intention is to profit by the credulity of the fools who believe in them, think of it!

The cry is "Free Trade and Farmers' Rights;" once it was Free Trade and Sailor' Rights, and if the little rag-tag and bobtail merchants of the street were strong enough to get up a revolution we should hear some convention singing out "Free Trade and Bootblack's Rights." Ah, what a thing is the pious slaver of the partisan anaconda, and what a loving snake he is! Our friend of the World will now conclude with an appropriate ascription, which we quote. It succeeds the names of the platform committee of the "regenerate and re-invigorated Democracy:" "Worthy to lead the Roll of Honor are these names of the noble Democrats who have taken their places in the van of that Army of Progress which is now gathering to go up and possess the land."

If Deacon Pogram didn't write that it was at least produced by somebody hailing from Confederate X Roads, "wich is in the state of Kentucky."

The English Republic In Passe.

The "whirligig of time," says some one, "brings strange revenges." About one hundred years since, Jefferson and a few other daring spirits, hardly knowing at the time whether they would be fully seconded by the people or not, challenged the throne of Great Britain to show reason why America should not be free and independent. Through a struggle of eight years which has become historical, abroad as well as at home, for the high convictions of conscience and right which animated its prime movers even more than for the continuance and desperation of their efforts in arms, that coveted freedom was at last secured. The years and decades have slowly passed in dim but sure procession. The ringing voice of Patrick Henry and James Otis have left no echo on the air, and the sword of Washington is covered with the rust of time. Commerce and a literature in one language have obliterated the passions, the jealousies and the hatreds of that era. Americans have got rich in London and Englishmen are scattered all over our land and supported by the fruits of a soil which their fathers once insisted on possessing and taxing. Had Great Britain been less greedy in the days of the Colonies and less insanely careful for small things, she might have been wealthier to-day to the extent of the value of North America. But, perdere prius dementat," and so from lack of good sense, foresight and moderation the prize slipped out of her covetous fingers. Now is the hour of revenge for us.—Not in remembrance of the atrocities of hireling soldiery in the Revolution alone, but for the injustice of 1812, the insulting taunts flung at us over the puny shoulders of Mason and Slidell, the escapade of the Alabama, and for every domineering tone and act since the tax on tea. This revenge will shed no blood nor burn any villages or cities. It is peaceful as a falling snowflake and complete as a stroke of lightning. It comes to us in the form of an appeal made to this nation to sympathize with and help, so far as the nature of the case will permit, the masses of the English people who are perishing through lack of a fair division of land with authority to use and hold it. Mr. Bradlaugh, who represents the mechanics, operatives and miners of England, made this appeal in Steinway Hall last Friday night in eloquent and fitting words. We agree with him that the question is not as to England becoming a republic finally, but as to her becoming so before the people understand what that word implies. And this possible state of things the conservative landed aristocracy of the realm will themselves precipitate unless they soon consent to some legal provision for the amelioration of the condition of the poor. "We have prostrated ourselves at the foot of the throne," wrote Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence. It is recorded that the supplicant was kicked for his pains. "All other counsel failing, we besought aid from America," will be the coming statement of the new republic of England. "It was given freely as it was solicited" will be written concerning the application. That were indeed a revenge worthy the descendants of the men of '76; to see a despised republic reproduce its kind in a nation that once sought its annihilation. "The mills of the gods grind slow but they grind fine."

"Droop, Flag and Pennant!"

On Saturday the James W. Baldwin, the M. Martin and the Eagle all had their colors at half-mast, as a token of respect to the bereaved family of Captain Tremper, whose eldest child, Mrs. Hoffman, lay dead, after suffering untold agony. To us there is an indescribable feeling of sadness at sight of the half-masted ensign, and when it waves mournfully in the wind for one who commenced the journey of life with us, how forcibly we are reminded that "all flesh is grass;" but as the crimson stripes, typical of His all cleansing blood, and the white, a faint emblem of His purity, ripple in the breeze, disclosing the blue with its stars of hope, we think of how the feet that ached and bled beneath their load have been tenderly gathered to the care of the all Good Father who takes us to his rest after our wandering through doubts and fears have caused.

> "The blue of our summer sky
> Is dim and pallid to theirs;
> The old horror faded away,
> And glory all unawares."

To the little ones who have lost a mother's love and tender care, to the husband, the parents and the brothers, we can only say, "and of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Gone Down.

The steamer Dean Richmond of the six o'clock line between New York and Albany and which has been moored to one of the ice house docks just above this city all the season, went to New York on Saturday to take her place in the line, fall trade baving commenced.

THIERS' STRATEGY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A special to the World dated London, Oct. 5th, says Thiers has given consent to the proposed alliance between the Republicans and Imperialists as the only means of preventing a restoration of the monarchy with Count Chambord as Henri V. The party is constantly receiving new accessions to the ranks, nevertheless the chances so far favor the monarchists, who have a majority in the Assembly, the entire army and abundance of money, with which they have been bribing weak and ambitious politicians. M. Rouher has been promised a baronetcy immediately after the restoration, which may now be considered sure to come about soon after the Assembly convenes. That Thiers should have consented at last to an alliance with the imperialists is regarded as evidence of the rapid strides which the monarchial cause have been making and the urgent necessity for immediate measures to preserve the now tottering republic.

CAPTAIN HALL'S DEATH.

The Herald has a letter from Dundee, Scotland, stating that an important statement relative to the death of Capt. Hall of the Polaris has been made by second mate Morton, given to the United States Consul there and been forwarded to the American government. Morton was Hall's attendant in his illness and he has made a statement, so says the Herald correspondent, implicating Dr. Bissell in the death of Hall. He also intimates that Buddington coincides with Morton's statements, but keeps very reticent.

CAVING OF A TUNNEL.

Thirty feet of the tunnel on Fourth Avenue near Ninetieth Street caved in to-day, stopping travel several hours on the Harlem and Hudson River Railroads. No one was injured.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

There was an immense audience at the Academy of Music to-night. Felix Bruno presided. Dean Canterbury in the opening prayer pleaded that all the walls of separation between churches might be broken down. Rev. Dr. Knox, of Ireland, made an eloquent appeal that all would abide in Christ. Rev. Norajon Sheshadra, of Bombay, gave an account of the founding of a Christian colony in Bombay. Rev. Dr. Hoge, of Richmond, spoke of union in the Saviour as the bond of the Alliance. Rev. Mr. Freemantle, of London, and Rev. Dr. Carlin, of Geneva, made short addresses.

Rev. Dr. Stephenson, of Dublin, asked the prayers of the Alliance for Ireland. Rev. P. Lorriauer, of Paris, spoke of the spread of evangelical principles in France, and stated that a French Catholic Senator and Catholic Archbishop both sent for a Protestant bible and minister before being executed by the Communists.

Rev. Dr. Biggs, of London, believed there was an upheaving of hearts pinioned by Romanism. General Fisk, of St. Louis, said if these meetings continue, all distinctions of creed will be battered down. Charles Reade, Member of the English Parliament, made a few remarks, and Dr. McCosh gave the benediction.

A meeting similar to that at the Academy of Music was held at Steinway Hall. The speeches were in German. The large hall was crowded, while a large number of persons lined the sidewalks outside.

The Dean of Canterbury spoke to-day at the Church of the Ascension on the desirability of union among Protestant denominations. He said that notwithstanding sectarian differences the basis on which Protestant denominations are established is the same, and he thought the present Evangelical Alliance would tend powerfully to give them harmony of action, especially in missionary labor.

At University Place Presbyterian Church Rev. Mr. Sheshadra discoursed on the condition of Christianity in that country.

All the churches at which delegates to the Evangelical Alliance spoke this morning and evening were densely crowded.

EXECUTION OF THE MODOCS.

All Make Speeches.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—At 11 o'clock Thursday General Wheaton had a talk with the Indians, in the guard house. Jack, who by the by looked considerably worn and pulled down by close confinement for the past two or three months, took a seat on the end of the bunk, and old Schonchin sat down on his right, huddled up in his blanket. Both of these modest braves were shackled at the feet, and had rather a wild and nervous appearance, as if very anxious about their future. Boston Charley and Black Jim, who were shackled together, sat down on the left of Jack, the former on the edge of the bank, and the latter on the floor, with his back to the wall. Buckskin Doctor and Pete, two of the Lost River murderers, sat next to Black Jim, with Barncho and Slolux on their left, and Long Jim on the extreme right. Young Schonchin sat on the bunk on the right of his father, and the Curly-Headed Doctor, Dave and another of the Lost River murderers were squatted along the wall on the right of the semi-circle. The whole party were very fidgety, and although they had learned from outside sources that six of them were going to be hanged, they had received no official notification of their approaching doom. After the general had taken his seat the post chaplain walked into the middle of the circle and delivered an address to the condemned, which closed as follows:

I have to tell you all that the great father in Washington has decided that to-morrow you must all die for your sins, and the Great Spirit also tells you that if you repent and show sorrow for the crimes you have committed you will go to the happy land.

He then stepped up and shook hands with them all, adding: "I hope to meet you all in the happy land above." When these remarks were translated by Dave Hill the captives evinced considerable interest, and they were evidently striving hard to maintain composure, and they had a very stolid appearance, but the nervous twitching of the hands and restless wandering of their eyes showed that the blow struck hard. Boston Charley kept steadily chewing tobacco while the sentence was being spoken, and squirted juice about the floor in a nonchalant style, as if nothing of any importance was taking place. Schonchin expressed his contempt for the whole matter by laying back on the bunk and hawing in a most expressive manner, as if the entire proceedings were rather a farce. Jack appeared to take the news very coolly, but his bright and sparkling eyes appeared unusually brilliant and gazed around the circle in a quick and restless manner. The interpreter then informed them, by order of the president, that their wives and families would be taken good care of, also that Gen. Wheaton was now prepared to hear any remarks they had to make. Captain Jack then spoke as follows:

I have heard the sentence and know what it is, but I feel that I am more innocent than Bogus Charley, Hooker Jim, Steamboat Frank and Shacknasty Jim; that these men planned and instigated the crime of which I am accused. When I look into my heart I see no crime there. Young men started these murders.—It's hard to rid them of their savage habits. I was always in favor of peace, and Bogus Charley was the first to propose the murder of Gen. Canby and the peace commissioners. These young men were with him. I said no, but they had the power and carried me with them. We came near a personal difficulty. My life was in danger when Bogus Charley proposed killing Gen. Canby. Boston Charley was the one who first sanctioned it. Bogus Charley said, if you fail to help me I do it myself. I feel while these four men are at liberty they have triumphed over me, and the government should feel more satisfied if they were brought to trial, as they were as guilty, if not more so, than I am. I say that Bogus Charley was the only man who influenced me; he was a traitor to both sides.—He told lies to the Modocs, and lied to Gen. Canby. I should like to see him brought here. Hooker Jim and Bogus Charley were the men that agitated the murder. I want now to tell the truth. I want to see those men. I know that Shacknasty Jim killed Gen. Canby and shot Meacham, and Boston Charley killed Dr. Thomas. That is all I know about the massacre. Boston Charley says Shacknasty helped to kill Dr. Thomas, and he wants to see him tried as a murderer. Shacknasty told me that he told Gen. Wheaton he killed Gen. Canby, but I did not believe him. He said so after the massacre. Bogus Charley told me he knew blood was on his hands, and I would not be held accountable, as he was the real criminal. Bogus Charley wanted to kill both Gens. Canby and Gillem, and was very sorry that Gen. Gillem did not come out that day.

Jack begged for a reprieve. He was told, by order of General Wheaton, that the great law-makers of the government had carefully considered his case, and that the President's decision was final. Later, he renewed his attack on General Wheaton, urging that it would be quite proper for Scarfaced Charlie to take his place, and then his valuable services would be saved for his family and tribe. Gen. Wheaton then asked if any of the others had anything to say. Slolux spoke as follows:

I want to talk. People call me George. I have been confined in the guard-house through misrepresentations, and my child died yesterday, and I could not go with the mourners. Nobody here can say that he saw me at the scene of the massacre. I would like to know who were the witnesses against me. They told lies. I took no part in the massacre. I am confined here without cause.

Barncho said:

I am innocent. I want to go see the man confined, who really killed General Canby. I was some distance away when the killing was done.

They were then told that they were only charged with carrying arms to assist in the massacre and they both denied carrying arms at all. Black Jim then said:

I see a great many men present but have no talk to make as Captain Jack talks. I always tell the truth, and am well known among my people. Was wounded in the first fight at Lost river, and was very sick for many months and not on the war path. My heart tells me I am a good and strong man and able to take care of the Modocs. If Jack and Schonchin are killed I should then be left to take care of the Modocs. I do not know what Jack and Schonchin think about it. That's my idea, am afraid of nothing; and when it's war am always in the front rank. If I have been guilty of crime and the law of chiefs decides that I should die, I am willing to die, and am not afraid to die. I have been a long time confined in the guard house without even a chance to talk, and if we are to die I think we should make some arrangements for our spirits in the other world, and I would like to hear the spirit man talk.

Boston Charley then expressed a desire to talk, and said:

You all knew me during the war, but it seemed to me that I had two hearts—one Indian and the other white. I am a boy, yet you all know of what I am guilty. Although a boy, I feel like a man. When I look each side of me I think of those other men as women. I am not afraid to die. I think I am the only man in the room. I fought in the front rank with Shacknasty, Steamboat, Bogus and Hooker Jim. I am wholly a man, not half a woman. I killed General Canby, assisted by Steamboat Frank and Bogus. Bogus said, "Do you believe these Commissioners mean to try to make peace with us?" I said, "I believe so." He said, "I don't believe so; they want to lead us into some trap." I said, "All right; I go with you, Captain, and Anderson remembers when Bogus came into camp in the evening, and when I came in the morning. I would like to see all my people and bid them good-by to-day. I would like to go to the stockade. I feel that if I criminate other parties it would not amount to anything. I see it's too late now, that our chief men were not at the bottom of that affair, and they did not take such a prominent part in the massacre as the young men. I am young. I know but little. When I see anything with my eyes I know it.

Boston was then asked why they killed Canby and the commissioners. He said that all the presents they received had no influence on them, and they suspected Canby and the commissioners of treachery, and got up a big mad. Boston then made a long harangue in which he tried to show that Jack had no share in the massacre, and that he had worked very hard in keeping the young men quiet. He appeared to lay all the blame on Bogus, and also said that Bogus slept in the white camp the night before the massacre in order to disarm any suspicion. Schonchin was asked by order of General Wheaton if he had anything he wished to say. The old chief's eye lighted considerably at the prospect of talk and he made a sign in the affirmative. He presently commenced and spoke as follows, his speech being interpreted by Oliver Applegate and Dave Hill:

You all know me here. I was always a good man. There was a time when I did not want the white man here. I asked advice from white men. I sent my boy to Yinax reservation, and he chose a piece of land for his home. Boston Charley has told the truth when he called me a woman. I was like a woman, and opposed to war. I was always a peace man, but there were some young men that were over rash and anxious to do something to distinguish themselves. Hooker Jim and some other boys made all the trouble, and when I look at these irons on my feet and legs, I feel that they should wear them and not I. I have always given young men advice, shook hands with white people, and here I am now condemned with irons on my feet. I heard what the great spirit man had to say, and I think it good. I should not die for what others have done, but I will cross the river and will go to meet my father in the spirit land.

After the delivery of these speeches by the condemned, the post chaplain made a very solemn prayer for them, and the meeting broke up. The prisoners were shortly afterwards returned to their cells, and at 5 P. M. were visited by their families. This was the first meeting since the death warrant had been made public, and as it was to be the last before death separated them forever on this earth, it would naturally have been affecting, but we were perfectly unprepared for the frantic state of grief into which the women worked themselves. They howled their weird death song and threw themselves on their doomed friends, fawning them all over. Even the little children seemed to catch the infection, and they cried and wept in most fiendish style. Jack appeared very much affected at meeting his favorite squaw Lizzie and the little papoose. His sister Mary was even more affected, and worked herself into a perfect paroxysm of grief. The little girl even appeared to comprehend the situation, and sobbed bitterly as Jack gave her one last embrace. The squaws returned to the stockade, and the murderers were left in their cells. Old Schonchin met his family without much visible emotion, but his children cried bitterly, and the squaws yelled as if the world was coming to an end. The chief did not betray any outward signs of agitation.—He kissed his little son repeatedly, and when just before the retreat they were taken away, he laid down in his cell and rolled himself like a ball in his blanket. During the afternoon a number of soldiers and citizens went out to see the patent drop on which the Modocs are to be executed to-morrow.

THE EXECUTION.

JACKSONVILLE, Oregon, Oct. 4.—The following are the particulars of the execution of the Modoc Indians at Fort Klamath yesterday: Boston Charley and Black Jim were first led to the scaffold, Schonchin following. They manifested iron nerve, apparently resolved to die bravely as they lived. Capt. Jack went calmly to the scaffold, but looked abject and miserable. The irons had been taken off, but all were securely pinioned to the scaffold. Interpreters, Capt. Applegate and David Hill, explained to the Indians the nature of the order read them by the adjutant promulgating the sentence. The two reprieved Indians, Barncho and Slolux, were on the ground, ironed and under guard. During the reading, the condemned Indians remained seated on the platform of the drop, listening, but understanding nothing except as explained by interpreters. The chaplain then offered earnest prayer. At 10:15 A. M. the nooses were placed on the Indians' necks. It was found necessary to cut off part of Jack's long hair, which was in the way of the rope. Captain Hoge took the farewell of the prisoners; black caps were drawn over their faces, and at 10:20 the signal was given, the rope cut and the drop fell. Capt. Jack and Black Jim died easily, but Schonchin and Boston Charley were terribly convulsed, and repeatedly drew up their legs. As the drop fell a smothered cry of horror rose from the crowd of five hundred Klamath Indians. The wives and relatives of the condemned Modocs in the stockade, in full view of the execution, sent up howls and wails of anguish. Six coffins had been placed directly in rear of the gallows; two of them were unoccupied.—The order reprieving Barncho and Slolux only arrived at 10:30 the night before the execution, and preparations for their execution had also been made. Application was made by the sheriff of Jackson county, Oregon, to Gen. Wheaton for the custody of the Indians indicted by the Grand Jury, but was refused.

THE PARDONED INDIANS.

A Forth Klamath dispatch, dated yesterday, says Barncho and Slolux were perfectly delighted at getting reprieved this morning, and although their sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life, they will pass a pretty dull season at Alcatraz.

JAY COOKE & CO.

Proposed Basis of Settlement.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Jay Cooke & Co. have completed their detailed statement of assets and liabilities and prepared a form of agreement for settlement to be presented for their creditors' consideration. The main features of the proposal are as follows:

The members of the firm surrender all their partnership and individual property. A trustee, Hon. E. A. Rollins, late Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has been chosen, with the approval of leading creditors, to manage the winding-up of the estate. Pro rata dividends will be made as fast as sufficient cash is realized from the conversion of assets, beginning very soon after the basis is approved of by the creditors. Settlements may be made with individual creditors, under restrictions which guard the rights of all. The trustee is to act under the advice and control of a committee of three prominent Philadeladelphia business men—S. M. Felton, late President of the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad, William C. Hanston of the Girard Bank, and Dell Noblitt, Jr., President of the Corn Exchange Bank. After all assessments are paid in full, the remaining estate will be reassigned.

It is understood the firm don't propose to call a general meeting of creditors, as they have been doing business in three different cities, and the creditors are so scattered as to render such a meeting impracticable. They will, however, address notes to such a number of their creditors in the three cities as can be conveniently seen from day to day at each point, and submit the papers with oral explanations. Three additional parties in this city have filed papers to have the firm declared bankrupt.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—Business on the N. Y., K. & S. Railroad, has slackened since the panic.

—Lindsley Steamer is undergoing repairs at Mayer's shop.

—The annual Fire Department parade and inspection will be held on the 30th.

—The Wiltwyck Chapel will be dedicated next Sunday at 3 o'clock. Particulars will be given hereafter.

—The Common Council is getting to be a grand high court of impeachment. Another trial on Friday night.

—That gap at Gross' mill has been filled. Now let the city build a new bridge and all will be well.

—Holding a four year old on our lap last night he suddenly gave our moustache a tweak and exclaimed "Oh Mollie! dot moon so yound and yed!"

—One of our compositors talks of retiring, having reaped the highest honors of the profession, in transforming "London Cor." into "Sundown Cox."

—Every little boy, big man, pretty woman and nice little girl who walks up the Avenue wants to stop on Gross' new bridge and give three cheers.

—Boss Everson rather doubts our honesty. He said on Saturday, after reading our account of the Samsonville war and the perfumery sprinkle, "by the by there might not be much truth in that, as I venture to say them fellers exaggerate—their imaginations is fervid."

—The Rondout M. E. Church was crowded on Sunday afternoon at the funeral services of little Johnnie Edmonds, a bright lad who died on Friday morning, of diptheria, the disease now so prevalent in the lower portion of the city. The Sabbath School, of which Johnnie was a member, was present and sang sweetly. The Pastor, Rev. J. J. Dean, preached a sermon full of consolation, from the text—"To die is gain," which was suggested by the expressions of the dying boy, who really longed for Heaven. The death of the little boy seemed to touch the hearts of a great many to whom he had endeared himself by winning ways and gentle manners, and the assemblage was more tearful and sympathetic than usual, sad as such occasions always are. Among the mourners present was Rev. Mr. Edmonds, who in the evening preached an earnest and able sermon.

Another Fire.

A small building on Ann street, occupied by two families, named Brown and Vinzens, and formerly known as "Schatzle's Hotel," was discovered to be on fire in the upper part about two o'clock this morning. The alarm brought the firemen out, and though a few pails of water had about subdued the flames, the streams from the engines thoroughly washed them out. The fire had apparently caught from the chimney.

Presentation Entertainment.

The Fakir of Islip, under the management of Messrs. Fox and Fay, will give a series of entertainments in Music Hall, commencing on Thursday evening, Oct. 9th, and at which, beside the pleasures of the performance, there will be a hundred useful and valuable presents distributed among the audience.

Assault and Robbery.

A man whom our informant did not know, but who hailed from Flatbush, was assaulted by a party of rowdies on Crane's dock, Ponckhockie, on Saturday night, and robbed of a considerable amount of money, which, it being pay-day, he had received in the afternoon. The man was badly injured, and cried lustily for help, but before assistance arrived his cowardly assailants decamped. It is unknown who they were.

Succoth.

To-day the Jewish festival of "Succoth," or feast of tabernacles, will be commenced and continue for eight days. This is the harvest feast of the Jews, and is a season of rejoicing and thanksgiving for the abundant crops vouchsafed to the country by the Almighty. Although a most important epoch in the calendar, the observance of this festival is not general, being confined almost entirely to the orthodox portion of the Jewish community.

Last Trip.

On Saturday last the day steamer Daniel Drew of the Albany line made her last passage of the season. She "was dressed in her bravest and her best," as was befitting the occasion, and had a band of music on board. When she landed at Rhinecliff Romeo made a speech to the Drew's officers, wishing not only the boat but themselves all sorts of good things, among others that they might be lengthened twenty-five feet. Why Romeo wants 'em so long we can't imagine unless it is to have "linked sweetness long drawn out."

Pretty Good.

On Saturday a group of men were talking over business affairs, when one, who had evidently been hurt in the late panic, remarked with a desperate air, "the bottom's going to fall out, I tell you—why confound these banks you can't get 'em to do a thing." "Oh, yes you can," said one of the group, "they did something for me yesterday." "Did they?" said the lugubrious individual, while a gleam of hope radiated his woe-begone countenance, "what did they do?" "Protested my note," was the reply, and then old Panic-stricken's jaw fell and he merely remarked with great emphasis, "Oh h——l!"

Opening.

On Saturday evening Dressel & Co. opened their new building on Holmes street. There were quite a number of people present, who congratulated the firm on the improvement upon the old place, and to whom were dispensed smiles and beer equally. Ein Vaderland! Eine Fahne! Zwei Lager Bier! Gesundheit! Then old man Goeller came, and brought all his hautboys with him, and filled the air with music; and there was lunch and, gracious! Bertsche made a speech (not the speech made Bertsche), to which George Houck replied, and if we could only write German as fast as those two healthy old sardines spit it at one another, we'd be fit for a reporter in the Senate Chamber—but "allers 's well."

Father Sheehy.

Rev. William Sheehy, whose arrival from Lismore, county Waterford, Ireland, we noticed some weeks since, is in town again, with Father O'Farrell. He has just completed a pleasant tour through this country, traveling west as far as Minnesota and through a great portion of the southwest, visiting most of the principal cities on his way. He is delighted with the country and will doubtless remember with pleasure the time spent here. He preached a splendid sermon yesterday at last mass, St. Mary's Church, on the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin. His manner is simple, plain and entirely instructive, at the same time leaving an impression on his hearers. He leaves to-day to visit a few more places during the week, and on Saturday will sail for Ireland. We wish him a pleasant voyage.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Regular Meeting.

The Mayor called Alderman Madden to the chair and taking the floor submitted the following communication, which was read by the Clerk:

TO THE HONORABLE THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON:

The object of this communication is to call your attention to the point of order raised by an Alderman of the First Ward in regard to the rights and privileges of the presiding officer of your body.

The reason for bringing the matter up in this form is that it may be decided upon its own merits and not be made to partake of in any way or be colored by other questions.

I have heretofore acted as if the Mayor were entitled to the same privileges as the other members of the Common Council, except as the charter specifies.

The position of the Mayor in your body has been compared to that of the Vice President in the United States Senate and to that of the Lieutenant Governor of the state of New York, which I think does not hold good, as the Constitution of the United States or that of the state of New York do not constitute the aforesaid officers members of the bodies over which they preside, whereas the charter of the city of Kingston says that the Mayor and Aldermen of the city shall constitute the Common Council thereof, and in other places speaks of the Mayor as a member of the Common Council.

With this view I consider that the Common Council has the power to regulate by rule the manner in which its deliberations shall be conducted, and as no rule has been made governing this case I have followed the rule commonly in use in other deliberative bodies, but if the decision of your body shall be adverse to the course heretofore taken I will cheerfully acquiesce. JAS. G. LINDSLEY, Mayor.

On motion the communication was received and placed on file and made the special order immediately after reading the minutes at the next meeting of the Common Council.

Resolved, That the same be laid over until the next regular meeting of this body, and that at said meeting, which will be the first regular meeting after the delivery of said certificates as aforesaid, any person conceiving himself aggrieved by any or either of the said assessments shall have an opportunity to be heard in relation thereto, before this Common Council, either orally or in writing; and that notice to that effect be published in the official newspapers of the city.

On motion the resolution was adopted.

The Corporation Counsel reported in relation to the case of H. Sudam, who claimed to have been erroneously taxed and requested repayment of the sum erroneously collected, that in his opinion the best course for Mr. Sudam to pursue would be to apply for relief through the County Supervisors. Also in relation to the claim of Rev. Mr. James that it was doubtful if the exemption from taxation on the ground of his being a clergyman could be legally granted, the title being in another person.

On motion the report was received and the Clerk directed to notify the parties that the relief asked could not be given by the Common Council.

Alderman Sahler stated that it was reported that a number of persons were selling liquor without license, and moved that the City Clerk notify the Commissioners of the Alms House to prosecute all such persons at once. Carried.

Cane Presentation.

The residence of Hon. Thomas Cornell on Saturday evening was the scene of a very pleasant affair, which was greatly enjoyed by all the participants therein, although to the above named gentleman a most complete surprise.

On Tuesday, July 29th, the Sabbath School of the Second M. E. Church, uptown, had an excursion, for which they were given the free use of a steamer by Mr. Cornell. After the return of the school it was proposed to acknowledge this kindness in some appropriate way, and the purchase and presentation of a fine cane was finally decided upon.

The cane was purchased and a committee consisting of the following gentlemen, connected with the school, appointed to carry out the arrangements: F. M. Nestell, Superintendent, P. J. Dolson, B. McBride, J. W. Wheeler, H. B. Marsh. These gentlemen fulfilled the duties imposed upon them in a satisfactory manner, with the co-operation of their pastor, Rev. W. H. Mickle.

On Saturday evening about 8 o'clock the committee, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Mickle, waited upon Mr. Cornell at his home. The reverend gentlemen informing him they had called on some business, they were invited into the library, and the members of the household, with Rev. Messrs. Cooper and Murray, who had called in and who of course (?) knew nothing about it beforehand, having been summoned the Rev. Mr. Mickle in a few well-chosen remarks, presented the cane, neatly alluding to the fact that the material was of ebony, the heart of the tree, and was a gift not from one heart alone but from three hundred hearts—the Sunday School. He thanked Mr. Cornell for his generosity and joined with those he represented in wishing him a long life of prosperity and usefulness.

Mr. Cornell responded to the brief address in an exceedingly happy manner, returning thanks to the donors for their handsome present, but disclaiming any credit for the act of which it was a memorial. He was thankful to a kind Providence who placed it in his power to render his fellow-men a service and the service he had done them was only a slight exercise of this power, for which he had not thought an acknowledgment deserved.

This pleasant ceremony over, the party were entertained for a brief time in social conversation, refreshments were served by the ladies of the house, and the committee presently took their departure, leaving behind and carrying with them pleasing recollections of an event which had been successfully and gracefully carried out in all its details.

The cane is of very fine, highly-polished ebony, with a large and handsome gold head, the chased work being very elegant and beautifully finished. On top of the head is engraved—"Presented to Hon. Thomas Cornell by the Second M. E. Sabbath School, Kingston, N. Y. W. H. Mickle, Pastor. F. M. Nestell, Superintendent. October, 1873." The engraving is the work of Safford & Carter, and like everything they do, is a piece of excellent workmanship.

A Mill.

Division street was the scene on Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning, of an affray which would have been more in place in the Five Points or some other locality where law and order are quoted below par. A number of rowdies, we hear, began the rumpus with a set-to with boxing-gloves, which terminated in a general plug-muss, during which, we regret to say, none of the participants were seriously injured, although some bad blood and more bad language was let out, to the disturbance of the neighborhood and the disgrace of the police. The crowd engaged was a large one and stones and other missiles flew with a force and frequency unpleasant to any party standing in range. There was some tall running, too, victory seeming to waver, perching first on one side of the rowdy combatants, then on the other, while skirmishers made good time up and down Division and side streets, swearing vengeance but never getting near enough to strike each other. We hope soon something will be done by the city authorities to put a stop to this kind of outrage.

Trial Trip.

On Saturday afternoon the Ceres, of Cornell's line, which, since her burning at Newburgh, early in the season, has been re-building at this port, went on a trial trip. She steamed up the creek as far as Eddyville, where she rounded to and started down stream, making a land at McCauslands' yard, after leaving which the Sammy Cornell came up on the starboard side of the Ceres, when the closest race we have seen in a long while was inaugurated. The hooks were dropped on both boats and they went rushing down the creek side by side, the Sammy making a wonderful fuss, but going like a racer, while the Ceres was doing the thing very quietly and doing it all the time. The race attracted a great deal of attention from people along the wharves and on the vessels, and bells were rung, whistles screamed, and hats were waved as the two boats flew past. The Sammy led a trifle until just after passing the Newark Cement Company's wharf, the Ceres picked her up, and the party on board the latter craft were sanguine of giving their opponent a good view of the lettering on her stern, when the Sammy gave a series of spiteful snorts, buttoned her ears behind her, and as the two boats neared the light-house the Samuel rushed a long streak of water between her and the Ceres, and had there been any stern windows in the former those on board the latter could have enjoyed a fine view of them. After passing the light-house the Sammy went on down the river, while the Ceres rounded to and returned, evidently satisfied that she was overmatched.

The Ceres is to all intents a new boat, and a remarkably pretty little craft. She is brave with new paint and new joiner work, which is so arranged as to be as handy as a pocket in a shirt. "Bob" has superintended the overhauling of "the mill and kettle," assisted by Van, and on the trial trip everything worked well, though, as was to be expected, not so smoothly as it will after a while. The boat will resume her work of towing the Pennsylvania Company's boats between Newburgh and New York, and she is officered as follows: Captain, M. Sherman; Pilot, S. Schryver; Engineers, Robert Alexander and Van Shultz. The officers of the boat entertained a party of invited guests during the trial trip, and did it in the most hospitable manner. They have a nice boat under them, they are a lot of good fellows, and good luck to them.

For Once.

As a rule we object to the popular concert hall style of amusement, but why a nightly entertainment in a concert hall or opera house (as bad taste will insist on calling them) should not be praised when good is "one of those things which no fellah ever can find out, you know." We had heard that the troupe at the Opera House in this city for the past week was a more than usually good one, so on Friday evening we scooted the Opera House in, and verily we were entertained. We don't suppose it is news to any person hereabouts to have it mentioned that Harry Shay is a funny fellow, and that his stage make up and dialect are inimitable. He is only a youngster in the business but he beats lots of the veterans. Little Florence is a pretty child, and does her songs and dances with melody and grace. The favorite seemed to be Miss Ella Raymond, who dresses with great taste, sings very nicely and dances well, without an inordinate display of how high she can kick. Miss Georgie May does her stage business with considerable taste, great ability, and much modesty. Kate Riddell didn't appear—we wish she had, and sang that "Horrible Tale," for she does that splendidly. We'd like to know where she unearthed that bonnet. The show is a good one and Harry Shay as a stage manager is a success, and Leon deserves a good word for his enterprise in getting together so good a troupe.

AUTUMN IS AT THE DOOR!

THE FALL SEWING MUST BE COMMENCED?

Are You Properly Prepared?

We cannot offer you much in way of STITCHES, but are on hand to help you efficiently as possible by furnishing the

for outfits for your girls, clothing for your boys and all the various articles demanded for family comfort, housekeeping conveniences and the pleasant equipment of home. Our plans for the fall are:

To Keep a Better Stock

Than usual, to push our trade in handsome and substantial goods as rapidly as demand will justify, and to stand fast by the honored principle that has made our store popular and our business successful, viz.:

ONE PRICE TO ALL

And the fair truth as to quality of what we sell.

At the opening of the fall season we take occasion to correct some evident misapprehension as to our style of TRUSTING. We are not disposed to make

"CAST IRON RULES"

as to trade made by any of our well-known customers, and it is our wish and our interest to be obliging to all, but we MUST be understood as positively determined

NOT TO DO A CREDIT BUSINESS!

Such of our reliable customers as find the usual Thirty days a convenience, are entirely welcome to the time, if payment is promptly made, but we make no offer of running accounts and cannot consent to do anything but a strictly

CASH BUSINESS.

This is simply just to our trade and aside from convenience to ourselves, the maintenance of the principle is of real importance to our customers, for we cannot sell goods at the very close margins we now make if our profits are to be cut down by losses sure to come with any general credit trade.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—Business on the N. Y., K. & S. Railroad, has slackened since the panic.

—Lindsley Steamer is undergoing repairs at Mayer's shop.

—The annual Fire Department parade and inspection will be held on the 30th.

—The Wiltwyck Chapel will be dedicated next Sunday at 3 o'clock. Particulars will be given hereafter.

—The Common Council is getting to be a grand high court of impeachment. Another trial on Friday night.

—That gap at Gross' mill has been filled. Now let the city build a new bridge and all will be well.

—Holding a four year old on our lap last night he suddenly gave our moustache a tweak and exclaimed "Oh Mollie! dot moon so yound and yed!"

—One of our compositors talks of retiring, having reaped the highest honors of the profession, in transforming "London Cor." into "Sundown Cox."

—Every little boy, big man, pretty woman and nice little girl who walks up the Avenue wants to stop on Gross' new bridge and give three cheers.

—Boss Everson rather doubts our honesty. He said on Saturday, after reading our account of the Samsonville war and the perfumery sprinkle, "by the by there might not be much truth in that, as I venture to say them fellers exaggerate—their imaginations is fervid."

—The Rondout M. E. Church was crowded on Sunday afternoon at the funeral services of little Johnnie Edmonds, a bright lad who died on Friday morning, of diptheria, the disease now so prevalent in the lower portion of the city. The Sabbath School, of which Johnnie was a member, was present and sang sweetly. The Pastor, Rev. J. J. Dean, preached a sermon full of consolation, from the text—"To die is gain," which was suggested by the expressions of the dying boy, who really longed for Heaven. The death of the little boy seemed to touch the hearts of a great many to whom he had endeared himself by winning ways and gentle manners, and the assemblage was more tearful and sympathetic than usual, sad as such occasions always are. Among the mourners present was Rev. Mr. Edmonds, who in the evening preached an earnest and able sermon.

Another Fire.

A small building on Ann street, occupied by two families, named Brown and Vinzens, and formerly known as "Schatzle's Hotel," was discovered to be on fire in the upper part about two o'clock this morning. The alarm brought the firemen out, and though a few pails of water had about subdued the flames, the streams from the engines thoroughly washed them out. The fire had apparently caught from the chimney.

Presentation Entertainment.

The Fakir of Islip, under the management of Messrs. Fox and Fay, will give a series of entertainments in Music Hall, commencing on Thursday evening, Oct. 9th, and at which, beside the pleasures of the performance, there will be a hundred useful and valuable presents distributed among the audience.

Assault and Robbery.

A man whom our informant did not know, but who hailed from Flatbush, was assaulted by a party of rowdies on Crane's dock, Ponckhockie, on Saturday night, and robbed of a considerable amount of money, which, it being pay-day, he had received in the afternoon. The man was badly injured, and cried lustily for help, but before assistance arrived his cowardly assailants decamped. It is unknown who they were.

Succoth.

To-day the Jewish festival of "Succoth," or feast of tabernacles, will be commenced and continue for eight days. This is the harvest feast of the Jews, and is a season of rejoicing and thanksgiving for the abundant crops vouchsafed to the country by the Almighty. Although a most important epoch in the calendar, the observance of this festival is not general, being confined almost entirely to the orthodox portion of the Jewish community.

Last Trip.

On Saturday last the day steamer Daniel Drew of the Albany line made her last passage of the season. She "was dressed in her bravest and her best," as was befitting the occasion, and had a band of music on board. When she landed at Rhinecliff Romeo made a speech to the Drew's officers, wishing not only the boat but themselves all sorts of good things, among others that they might be lengthened twenty-five feet. Why Romeo wants 'em so long we can't imagine unless it is to have "linked sweetness long drawn out."

Pretty Good.

On Saturday a group of men were talking over business affairs, when one, who had evidently been hurt in the late panic, remarked with a desperate air, "the bottom's going to fall out, I tell you—why confound these banks you can't get 'em to do a thing." "Oh, yes you can," said one of the group, "they did something for me yesterday." "Did they?" said the lugubrious individual, while a gleam of hope radiated his woe-begone countenance, "what did they do?" "Protested my note," was the reply, and then old Panic-stricken's jaw fell and he merely remarked with great emphasis, "Oh h——l!"

Opening.

On Saturday evening Dressel & Co. opened their new building on Holmes street. There were quite a number of people present, who congratulated the firm on the improvement upon the old place, and to whom were dispensed smiles and beer equally. Ein Vaderland! Eine Fahne! Zwei Lager Bier! Gesundheit! Then old man Goeller came, and brought all his hautboys with him, and filled the air with music; and there was lunch and, gracious! Bertsche made a speech (not the speech made Bertsche), to which George Houck replied, and if we could only write German as fast as those two healthy old sardines spit it at one another, we'd be fit for a reporter in the Senate Chamber—but "allers 's well."

Father Sheehy.

Rev. William Sheehy, whose arrival from Lismore, county Waterford, Ireland, we noticed some weeks since, is in town again, with Father O'Farrell. He has just completed a pleasant tour through this country, traveling west as far as Minnesota and through a great portion of the southwest, visiting most of the principal cities on his way. He is delighted with the country and will doubtless remember with pleasure the time spent here. He preached a splendid sermon yesterday at last mass, St. Mary's Church, on the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin. His manner is simple, plain and entirely instructive, at the same time leaving an impression on his hearers. He leaves to-day to visit a few more places during the week, and on Saturday will sail for Ireland. We wish him a pleasant voyage.

The Mayor called Alderman Madden to the chair and taking the floor submitted the following communication, which was read by the Clerk:

TO THE HONORABLE THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON:

The object of this communication is to call your attention to the point of order raised by an Alderman of the First Ward in regard to the rights and privileges of the presiding officer of your body.

The reason for bringing the matter up in this form is that it may be decided upon its own merits and not be made to partake of in any way or be colored by other questions.

I have heretofore acted as if the Mayor were entitled to the same privileges as the other members of the Common Council, except as the charter specifies.

The position of the Mayor in your body has been compared to that of the Vice President in the United States Senate and to that of the Lieutenant Governor of the state of New York, which I think does not hold good, as the Constitution of the United States or that of the state of New York do not constitute the aforesaid officers members of the bodies over which they preside, whereas the charter of the city of Kingston says that the Mayor and Aldermen of the city shall constitute the Common Council thereof, and in other places speaks of the Mayor as a member of the Common Council.

With this view I consider that the Common Council has the power to regulate by rule the manner in which its deliberations shall be conducted, and as no rule has been made governing this case I have followed the rule commonly in use in other deliberative bodies, but if the decision of your body shall be adverse to the course heretofore taken I will cheerfully acquiesce. JAS. G. LINDSLEY, Mayor.

On motion the communication was received and placed on file and made the special order immediately after reading the minutes at the next meeting of the Common Council.

Alderman Bray, from the Finance Committee, reported that to have the City Hall bonds printed in the denomination of $1,000 would cost about $125 and in smaller denominations from $75 to $100 more.

On motion the committee were directed to have the bonds printed in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000.

The Committee on Auditing Accounts reported the following bills audited, and on motion warrants were ordered issued for the respective amounts:

The Committee on Auditing Accounts also reported the bill of R. Purvis & Son, $233.20, with a protest from George C. Woolsey for Anna Woolsey, claiming the amount of the bill to be excessive and that it should not be more than $180.

Alderman Sahler moved that the full amount of the bill be paid, and that $180 be assessed, which was lost, as follows:

AYES—Aldermen Sahler, Westbrook—2.

On motion the report was received and placed on file.

The City Assessors presented the certificates of special assessments made by them and duplicates thereof.

Alderman Canfield, from the Committee on Streets, in connection therewith offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the same be laid over until the next regular meeting of this body, and that at said meeting, which will be the first regular meeting after the delivery of said certificates as aforesaid, any person conceiving himself aggrieved by any or either of the said assessments shall have an opportunity to be heard in relation thereto, before this Common Council, either orally or in writing; and that notice to that effect be published in the official newspapers of the city.

On motion the resolution was adopted.

The Corporation Counsel reported in relation to the case of H. Sudam, who claimed to have been erroneously taxed and requested repayment of the sum erroneously collected, that in his opinion the best course for Mr. Sudam to pursue would be to apply for relief through the County Supervisors. Also in relation to the claim of Rev. Mr. James that it was doubtful if the exemption from taxation on the ground of his being a clergyman could be legally granted, the title being in another person.

On motion the report was received and the Clerk directed to notify the parties that the relief asked could not be given by the Common Council.

Alderman Sahler stated that it was reported that a number of persons were selling liquor without license, and moved that the City Clerk notify the Commissioners of the Alms House to prosecute all such persons at once. Carried.

Alderman Flynn offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, A petition has been received for the grading, curbing and guttering of St. Mary's street; and, whereas, the grading is about completed:

Resolved, That a curb and gutter be laid on each side of said street, under the direction of the Committee on Street with the Superintendent of the same, and that the Committee on Streets report an ordinance therefor.

On motion the resolution was adopted.

On motion a cross gutter was ordered constructed across Sterling street and a single crosswalk across Cedar and Sterling streets under direction of the Superintendent of Streets.

On motion single crosswalks were ordered across the following streets, under direction of the Superintendent of Streets; Adams at its juncture with Pierpont, Pierpont at its juncture with Hone, Bowery head of Wall, Bowery at its intersection with Pine.

The Common Council then took up as unfinished business the charges against Columbus Engine Co. No. 5.

Alderman Flynn moved that the company be excused from the charges and the charges dismissed.

Foreman Malone and Chief Engineer Weber were heard in reference to the charges.

Alderman Flynn moved the previous question on his motion and called the ayes and noes, pending the calling of which Alderman Tubby moved to adjourn, which was lost, as follows:

AYES—Aldermen Bug, Derrenbacher, Tubby, Whitaker—4.

NOES—Aldermen Bray, Cordts, Canfield, Flynn, Fredenburgh, Larkin, Madden, Plough, Sahler, Vandling—10.

Several motions to adjourn to different times were put and lost.

Alderman Tubby moved as an amendment to add to Alderman Flynn's motion "provided the company hereafter do duty as other firemen," which was carried, as follows:

AYES—Aldermen Bray, Canfield, Derrenbacher, Fredenburgh, Larkin, Plough, Tubby, Vandling, Whitaker—9.

NOES—Aldermen Cordts, Flynn, Madden, Sahler—4.

Alderman Flynn's motion as amended was then carried, as follows:

AYES—Aldermen Bray, Canfield, Derrenbacher, Flynn, Fredenburgh, Larkin, Plough, Tubby, Vandling, Whitaker—10.

NOES—Aldermen Cordts, Madden, Sahler—3.

On motion the Aldermen of the Ward were directed to investigate and report as to providing suitable quarters, hose, etc., for Columbus Engine Co. No. 5.

Cane Presentation.

The residence of Hon. Thomas Cornell on Saturday evening was the scene of a very pleasant affair, which was greatly enjoyed by all the participants therein, although to the above named gentleman a most complete surprise.

On Tuesday, July 29th, the Sabbath School of the Second M. E. Church, uptown, had an excursion, for which they were given the free use of a steamer by Mr. Cornell. After the return of the school it was proposed to acknowledge this kindness in some appropriate way, and the purchase and presentation of a fine cane was finally decided upon.

The cane was purchased and a committee consisting of the following gentlemen, connected with the school, appointed to carry out the arrangements: F. M. Nestell, Superintendent, P. J. Dolson, B. McBride, J. W. Wheeler, H. B. Marsh. These gentlemen fulfilled the duties imposed upon them in a satisfactory manner, with the co-operation of their pastor, Rev. W. H. Mickle.

On Saturday evening about 8 o'clock the committee, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Mickle, waited upon Mr. Cornell at his home. The reverend gentlemen informing him they had called on some business, they were invited into the library, and the members of the household, with Rev. Messrs. Cooper and Murray, who had called in and who of course (?) knew nothing about it beforehand, having been summoned the Rev. Mr. Mickle in a few well-chosen remarks, presented the cane, neatly alluding to the fact that the material was of ebony, the heart of the tree, and was a gift not from one heart alone but from three hundred hearts—the Sunday School. He thanked Mr. Cornell for his generosity and joined with those he represented in wishing him a long life of prosperity and usefulness.

Mr. Cornell responded to the brief address in an exceedingly happy manner, returning thanks to the donors for their handsome present, but disclaiming any credit for the act of which it was a memorial. He was thankful to a kind Providence who placed it in his power to render his fellow-men a service and the service he had done them was only a slight exercise of this power, for which he had not thought an acknowledgment deserved.

This pleasant ceremony over, the party were entertained for a brief time in social conversation, refreshments were served by the ladies of the house, and the committee presently took their departure, leaving behind and carrying with them pleasing recollections of an event which had been successfully and gracefully carried out in all its details.

The cane is of very fine, highly-polished ebony, with a large and handsome gold head, the chased work being very elegant and beautifully finished. On top of the head is engraved—"Presented to Hon. Thomas Cornell by the Second M. E. Sabbath School, Kingston, N. Y. W. H. Mickle, Pastor. F. M. Nestell, Superintendent. October, 1873." The engraving is the work of Safford & Carter, and like everything they do, is a piece of excellent workmanship.

A Mill.

Division street was the scene on Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning, of an affray which would have been more in place in the Five Points or some other locality where law and order are quoted below par. A number of rowdies, we hear, began the rumpus with a set-to with boxing-gloves, which terminated in a general plug-muss, during which, we regret to say, none of the participants were seriously injured, although some bad blood and more bad language was let out, to the disturbance of the neighborhood and the disgrace of the police. The crowd engaged was a large one and stones and other missiles flew with a force and frequency unpleasant to any party standing in range. There was some tall running, too, victory seeming to waver, perching first on one side of the rowdy combatants, then on the other, while skirmishers made good time up and down Division and side streets, swearing vengeance but never getting near enough to strike each other. We hope soon something will be done by the city authorities to put a stop to this kind of outrage.

Trial Trip.

On Saturday afternoon the Ceres, of Cornell's line, which, since her burning at Newburgh, early in the season, has been re-building at this port, went on a trial trip. She steamed up the creek as far as Eddyville, where she rounded to and started down stream, making a land at McCauslands' yard, after leaving which the Sammy Cornell came up on the starboard side of the Ceres, when the closest race we have seen in a long while was inaugurated. The hooks were dropped on both boats and they went rushing down the creek side by side, the Sammy making a wonderful fuss, but going like a racer, while the Ceres was doing the thing very quietly and doing it all the time. The race attracted a great deal of attention from people along the wharves and on the vessels, and bells were rung, whistles screamed, and hats were waved as the two boats flew past. The Sammy led a trifle until just after passing the Newark Cement Company's wharf, the Ceres picked her up, and the party on board the latter craft were sanguine of giving their opponent a good view of the lettering on her stern, when the Sammy gave a series of spiteful snorts, buttoned her ears behind her, and as the two boats neared the light-house the Samuel rushed a long streak of water between her and the Ceres, and had there been any stern windows in the former those on board the latter could have enjoyed a fine view of them. After passing the light-house the Sammy went on down the river, while the Ceres rounded to and returned, evidently satisfied that she was overmatched.

The Ceres is to all intents a new boat, and a remarkably pretty little craft. She is brave with new paint and new joiner work, which is so arranged as to be as handy as a pocket in a shirt. "Bob" has superintended the overhauling of "the mill and kettle," assisted by Van, and on the trial trip everything worked well, though, as was to be expected, not so smoothly as it will after a while. The boat will resume her work of towing the Pennsylvania Company's boats between Newburgh and New York, and she is officered as follows: Captain, M. Sherman; Pilot, S. Schryver; Engineers, Robert Alexander and Van Shultz. The officers of the boat entertained a party of invited guests during the trial trip, and did it in the most hospitable manner. They have a nice boat under them, they are a lot of good fellows, and good luck to them.

For Once.

As a rule we object to the popular concert hall style of amusement, but why a nightly entertainment in a concert hall or opera house (as bad taste will insist on calling them) should not be praised when good is "one of those things which no fellah ever can find out, you know." We had heard that the troupe at the Opera House in this city for the past week was a more than usually good one, so on Friday evening we scooted to the Opera House in, and verily we were entertained. We don't suppose it is news to any person hereabouts to have it mentioned that Harry Shay is a funny fellow, and that his stage make up and dialect are inimitable. He is only a youngster in the business but he beats lots of the veterans. Little Florence is a pretty child, and does her songs and dances with melody and grace. The favorite seemed to be Miss Ella Raymond, who dresses with great taste, sings very nicely and dances well, without an inordinate display of how high she can kick. Miss Georgie May does her stage business with considerable taste, great ability, and much modesty. Kate Riddell didn't appear—we wish she had, and sang that "Horrible Tale," for she does that splendidly. We'd like to know where she unearthed that bonnet. The show is a good one and Harry Shay as a stage manager is a success, and Leon deserves a good word for his enterprise in getting together so good a troupe.

AUTUMN IS AT THE DOOR!

THE FALL SEWING MUST BE COMMENCED?

Are You Properly Prepared?

We cannot offer you much in way of STITCHES, but are on hand to help you efficiently as possible by furnishing the

for outfits for your girls, clothing for your boys and all the various articles demanded for family comfort, housekeeping conveniences and the pleasant equipment of home. Our plans for the fall are:

To Keep a Better Stock

Than usual, to push our trade in handsome and substantial goods as rapidly as demand will justify, and to stand fast by the honored principle that has made our store popular and our business successful, viz.:

ONE PRICE TO ALL

And the fair truth as to quality of what we sell.

At the opening of the fall season we take occasion to correct some evident misapprehension as to our style of TRUSTING. We are not disposed to make

"CAST IRON RULES"

as to trade made by any of our well-known customers, and it is our wish and our interest to be obliging to all, but we MUST be understood as positively determined

NOT TO DO A CREDIT BUSINESS!

Such of our reliable customers as find the usual Thirty days a convenience, are entirely welcome to the time, if payment is promptly made, but we make no offer of running accounts and cannot consent to do anything but a strictly

CASH BUSINESS.

This is simply just to our trade and aside from convenience to ourselves, the maintenance of the principle is of real importance to our customers, for we cannot sell goods at the very close margins we now make if our profits are to be cut down by losses sure to come with any general credit trade.

A Ridiculous Mouse.

A Keokuk (Ia.) lady while engaged in the pursuit of her domestic duties encountered a mouse in the flour barrel. Now, most ladies under similar circumstances, would have uttered a few feminine shrieks and then sought safety in the garret. But this one possesses more than the ordinary degree of female courage. She summoned the hired man and told him to get the shot gun, call the bull-dog and station himself at a convenient distance. Then she climbed half-way up stairs and commenced to punch the flour barrel vigorously with a pole. Presently the mouse made its appearance and started across the floor. The bull-dog at once went in pursuit. The man fired and the dog dropped dead. The lady fainted and fell down stairs, and the hired man, thinking that she was killed, and fearing that he would be arrested for murder, lit out, and has not been seen since. The mouse escaped.

How a Young Woman Got Her Money.

From the Chicago Times.

But one woman succeeded in fairly melting one of the directors. She was a young woman, not particularly pretty, perhaps, but interesting, and she had tears in her eyes, and $50 in the bank. She rushed frantically to one of the directors, and asked him if she could not draw her money.

"I am very sorry, madam," said he, "but I can't help you to it just now."

"But I must have it immediately," she replied, passionately. "It's all I have in the world."

"Well, my dear madam, you must have patience as well as the rest."

"But mine is an urgent case, and I can't wait, because—"

"Well, because what?"

"Because," said she, with a smile on her lip and a tear in her eye, "because I'm going to be married, and I've got to get some things. The man I'm going to marry has not a cent to pay the minister, and he has only one leg, and so I've got to see to everything myself."

The benevolent director dove into his pocket and produced his private purse, out of which he paid her the amount, and she went on her way rejoicing.

Joke on the Judge.

The Pioche (Cal.) Record, of September 10, relates this incident in a police court: About the first case that came up before Eense Van Hagan, our new Justice of the Peace, who took his seat last week, was that of a worthy gentleman who had unfortunately imbibed so freely of the flowing bowl that his social qualities became developed to such an alarming extent as to make the guardians of the public peace feel compelled to provide him with a night's entertainment at public expense. Appearing before his honor the following morning, rather dilapidated as to the outer man, but with a remnant of the evening's drollery gleaming in his eye, he thus accosted him: 'Be as light on me as you can, Judge, I'm tolerably hard up, and—and—you know how it is yourself." Among those who remembered Van in the palmy days of California, the "gayest of the gay," it was believed the point was "well taken."

Grant Tells a Story About Lincoln and A. H. Stephen's Overcoat.

A published statement that Alexander H. Stephens recently lost one of his overcoats at Dablonega, Ga., has moved the Augusta Constitutionalist to relate the following: This paragraph remind us of an anecdote about Mr. Stephens which Gen. Gordon tells with much unction. Gordon had it from President Grant at Washington. "When the three commissioners met us at Fortress Monroe," says Grant, "Mr. Stephens came swaddled up from top to toe in an enormous overcoat. Lincoln called me aside, as Mr. Stephens was disrobing, and observed:

"Grant, what does that performance of Stephens's remind you of?"

"Mr. President, I do not know; but what does it remind you of?"

"It reminds me," said Lincoln, with one of his queer winks, "of the biggest shuck off the smallest ear I ever saw in my life!"

A Great Italian Journalist.

We believe nobody in this country owns and edits two daily papers 450 miles apart, like Roggers Bonghi, the Italian liberal. He is professor of ancient history in the university of Rome, member of Parliament, and the proprietor and director of the two leading journals, one published at Naples and the other at Milan—the former, known as the "National Union." He has the reputation of being one of the first classical scholars in Italy. He is one of those political actors who are always looking for example to such countries as the United States. Monarchists in principle, they see in a liberal constitutional government, under a crown, many advantages enjoyed by the republic, and in a republic, such as that of the United States or Switzerland, the stability of an enlightened monarchial rule.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That sections three and six of article seven be amended as follows:

§ 6. The legislature shall not sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the Erie canal, the Oswego canal, the Champlain canal, the Black River canal, or the Cayuga and Seneca canal; but they shall remain the property of the state and under its management forever. Hereafter the expenditure for collections, superintendence, ordinary and extraordinary repairs on the canals named in this section shall not exceed, in any year, their gross receipts for the previous year. All funds that may be derived from any lease, sale or other disposition of any canal shall be applied in payment of the debt for which the canal revenues are pledged.

That the following be added as sections thirteen and fourteen, in place of sections thirteen and fourteen of this article, which have been transferred and inserted as sections twenty-one and twenty-two of article three.

§ 14. Neither the legislature, canal board, canal appraisers, nor any person or persons acting in behalf of the state, shall audit, allow or pay any claim which, as between citizens of the state, would be barred by lapse of time. The limitation of existing claims shall begin to run from the adoption of this section; but this provision shall not be construed to revive claims already barred by existing statutes, nor to repeal any statute fixing the time within which claims shall be presented or allowed, nor shall it extend to any claims duly presented within the time allowed by law, and prosecuted with due diligence from the time of such presentment. But if the claimant shall be under legal disability, the claim may be presented within two years after such disability is removed.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS proposing amendments to article three of the constitution.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That sections one, four, five, six, seven and eight of article three of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

ARTICLE III.

SECTION 1. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a senate and assembly.

§ 4. An enumeration of the inhabitants of the state shall be made under the direction of the legislature, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, and in every tenth year thereafter.

§ 5. The assembly shall consist of one hundred and twenty-eight members elected for one year. The members of assembly shall be apportioned among the several counties of the state, by the legislature, as nearly as may be, according to the number of their respective inhabitants, excluding aliens, and shall be chosen by single districts. The assembly districts shall remain as at present organized until after the enumeration of the inhabitants of the state in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five. The legislature, at its first session after the return of every enumeration, shall apportion the members of assembly among the several counties of the state, in manner aforesaid, and the board of supervisors in such counties as may be entitled under such apportionment to more than one member, except the city and county of New York, and in said city and county the board of aldermen of said city shall assemble at such times as the legislature making such apportionment shall prescribe and divide their respective counties into assembly districts, each of which districts shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory equal to the number of members of assembly to which such counties shall be entitled, and shall cause to be filed in the offices of the secretary of state and the clerks of their respective counties a description of such districts, specifying the number of each district, and the population thereof, according to the last preceding enumeration, as near as can be ascertained, and the apportionment and districts shall remain unaltered until another enumeration shall be made as herein provided. No town shall be divided in the formation of assembly districts. Every county heretofore established and separately organized, except the county of Hamilton, shall always be entitled to one member of the assembly, and no new county shall be hereafter erected unless its population shall entitle it to a member. The county of Hamilton shall elect with the county of Fulton until the population of the county of Hamilton shall, according to the ratio, be entitled to a member. But the legislature may abolish the said county of Hamilton and annex the territory thereof to some other county or counties. Nothing in this section shall prevent division at any time of counties and towns, and the erection of new towns and counties by the legislature.

§ 6. Each member of the legislature shall receive for his service an annual salary of one thousand five hundred dollars. The members of either house shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel in going to and returning from their place of meeting, once in each session, on the most usual route. Senators, when the senate alone is convened in extraordinary session, or when serving as members of the court for the trial of impeachments, and such members of the assembly, not exceeding nine in number, as shall be appointed managers of an impeachment, shall receive an additional allowance of ten dollars a day.

§ 7. No member of the legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this state, or the senate of the United States, from the governor, the governor and senate, or from the legislature, or from any city government, during the time for which he shall have been elected; and all such appointments, and all votes given for any such member for any such office or appointment, shall be void.

§ 8. No person shall be eligible to the legislature who at the time of his election is, or within one hundred days previous thereto has been, a member of congress, a civil or military officer under the United States, or an officer under any city government. And if any person shall, after his election as a member of the legislature, be elected to congress or appointed to any office, civil or military under the government of the United States, or under any city government, his acceptance thereof shall vacate his seat.

And that the following additional sections be added to said article three of the constitution:

§ 17. No act shall be passed which shall provide that any existing law, or any part thereof, shall be made or deemed a part of said act, or which shall enact that any existing law, or any part thereof, shall be applicable, except by inserting it in such act.

§ 18. The legislature shall not pass a private or local bill in any of the following cases:
Changing the names of persons.
Laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys, or for draining swamps or other low lands.
Locating or changing county seats.
Providing for changing of venue in civil or criminal cases.
Incorporating villages.
Providing for election of members of boards of supervisors.
Selecting, drawing, summoning or impanneling grand or petit jurors.
Regulating the interest on money.
The opening and conducting of elections or designating places of voting.
Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, percentage or allowance of public officers during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed.
Granting to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down railroad tracks.
Granting to any private corporation, association or individual any exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever.
Providing for building bridges, and chartering companies for such purposes, except on the Hudson river below Waterford, and on the East river, or over the waters forming a part of the boundaries of the state.

The legislature shall pass general laws providing for the cases enumerated in this section, and for all other cases which in its judgment may be provided for by general laws. But no law shall authorize the construction or operation of a street railroad except upon the condition that the consent of the owners of one-half in value of the property bounded on, and the consent also of the local authorities having the control of that portion of a street or highway upon which it is proposed to construct or operate such railroad be first obtained, or, in case the consent of such property-owners cannot be obtained, the general term of the supreme court in the district in which it is proposed to be constructed may, upon application, appoint three commissioners, who shall determine, after a hearing of all parties interested, whether such railroad ought to be constructed or operated, and their determination, confirmed by the court, may be taken in lieu of the consent of the property owners.

§ 19. The legislature shall neither audit nor allow any private claim or account against the state, but may appropriate money to pay such claims as shall have been audited and allowed according to law.

§ 20. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax and the object to which it is to be applied, and it shall not be sufficient to refer to any other law to fix such tax or object.

§ 21. On the final passage, in either house of the legislature, of any act which imposes, continues or revives a tax, or creates a debt or charge, or makes, continues or revives any appropriation of public or trust money or property, or releases, discharges or commutes any claim or demand of the state, the question shall be taken for yeas and nays, which shall be duly entered upon the journals, and three-fifths of all the members elected to either house shall in all such cases be necessary to constitute a quorum therein.

§ 22. There shall be in the several counties, except in cities whose boundaries are the same as those of the county, a board of supervisors, to be composed of such members and elected in such a manner, and for such period, as is or may be provided by law. In any such cities the duties and powers of a board of supervisors may be devolved upon the common council or board of aldermen thereof.

Section seventeen of said article is hereby made section twenty-three of the proposed amendment, and is amended so as to read as follows:

§ 23. The legislature shall, by general laws, confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties of the state such further powers of local legislation and administration as the legislature may from time to time deem expedient.

§ 24. The legislature shall not, nor shall the common council of any city, nor any board of supervisors, grant any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, agent or contractor.

§ 25. Sections seventeen and eighteen of this article shall not apply to any bill or the amendments to any bill which shall be reported to the legislature by commissioners who have been appointed pursuant to law to revise the statutes.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that, in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

STATE OF NEW YORK, In Senate, May 29, 1873.—The foregoing resolutions were duly passed.

The superintendent of public works shall appoint not more than three assistant superintendents, whose duties shall be prescribed by him, subject to modification by the legislature, and who shall receive for their services a compensation to be fixed by law. They shall hold their office for three years, subject to suspension or removal by the superintendent of public works, whenever in his judgment the public interest shall so require. Any vacancy in the office of any such assistant superintendent shall be filled, for the remainder of the term for which he was appointed, by the superintendent of public works; but in case of the suspension or removal of any such assistant superintendent by him he shall at once report to the governor, in writing, the cause of such removal. All other persons employed in the care and management of the canals, except collectors of tolls, and those in the department of the state engineer and surveyor, shall be appointed by the superintendent of public works, and be subject to suspension or removal by him.

§ 8. The office of canal commissioner is abolished from and after the appointment and qualification of the superintendent of public works, until which time the canal commissioners shall continue to discharge their duties as now provided by law. The superintendent of public works shall perform all the duties of the canal commissioners, and board of canal commissioners, as now declared by law, until otherwise provided by the legislature.

§ 9. The governor, by and with the consent of the senate, shall have power to fill vacancies, in the offices in this article named except as herein otherwise provided; or, if the senate be not in session, he may grant commissions, which shall expire at the end of the next succeeding session of the senate.

§ 10. The attorney-general, state engineer and surveyor and treasurer, in office at the time this article shall take effect, shall hold their offices until their successors are appointed.

§ 11. The powers and duties of the respective boards, and of the several officers in this article named, shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be such as now are or hereafter may be prescribed by law.

§ 12. All offices for the weighing, gauging, measuring, culling or inspecting any merchandise, produce, manufacture or commodity whatever, are hereby abolished, and no such office shall hereafter be created by law; but nothing in this section contained shall abrogate any office created for the purpose of protecting the public health or the interest of the state in its property, revenue, tolls or purchases, or of supplying the people with correct standards of weights and measures, or shall prevent the creation of any office for such purposes hereafter.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS proposing amendments to article four of the constitution.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That sections one, two, four, eight and nine of article four of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. The executive power shall be vested in a governor who shall hold his office for three years; a lieutenant-governor shall be chosen at the same time, and for the same term. The governor and lieutenant-governor elected next preceding the time when this section shall take effect, shall hold office during the term for which they were elected.

§ 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant-governor, except a citizen of the United States, of the age not less than thirty years, and who shall have been five years, next preceding his election, a resident of this state.

§ 4. The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of the state. He shall have power to convene the legislature (or the senant only) on extraordinary occasions. At extraordinary sessions no subject shall be acted upon, except such as the governor may recommend for consideration. He shall communicate by message to the legislature at every session the condition of the state, and recommend such matters to them as he shall judge expedient. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government, civil and military. He shall expedite all such measures as may be resolved upon by the legislature, and shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of ten thousand dollars, and there shall be provided for his use a suitable and furnished executive residence.

§ 8. The lieutenant-governor shall receive for his services an annual salary of five thousand dollars, and shall not receive or be entitled to any other compensation, fee or perquisite, for any duty and service he may be required to perform by the constitution or by law.

§ 9. Every bill which shall have passed the senate and assembly, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it shall have originated, which shall enter the objections at large on the journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent together with the objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house, it shall become a law notwithstanding the objections of the governor. In all such cases, the votes in both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature shall, by their adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall not become a law without the approval of the governor. No bill shall become a law after the final adjournment of the legislature unless approved by the governor within thirty days after such adjournment. If any bill presented to the governor contain several items of appropriations of money, he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case, he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects; and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur). That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that, in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

To its Natural Vitality and Color.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty.—Thus brashy weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stablished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

The Daily Freeman.

A Ridiculous Mouse.

A Keokuk (Ia.) lady while engaged in the pursuit of her domestic duties encountered a mouse in the flour barrel. Now, most ladies under similar circumstances, would have uttered a few feminine shrieks and then sought safety in the garret. But this one possesses more than the ordinary degree of female courage. She summoned the hired man and told him to get the shot gun, call the bull-dog and station himself at a convenient distance. Then she climbed half-way up stairs and commenced to punch the flour barrel vigorously with a pole. Presently the mouse made its appearance and started across the floor. The bull-dog at once went in pursuit. The man fired and the dog dropped dead. The lady fainted and fell down stairs, and the hired man, thinking that she was killed, and fearing that he would be arrested for murder, lit out, and has not been seen since. The mouse escaped.

How a Young Woman Got Her Money.

From the Chicago Times.

But one woman succeeded in fairly melting one of the directors. She was a young woman, not particularly pretty, perhaps, but interesting, and she had tears in her eyes, and $50 in the bank. She rushed frantically to one of the directors, and asked him if she could not draw her money.

"I am very sorry, madam," said he, "but I can't help you to it just now."

"But I must have it immediately," she replied, passionately. "It's all I have in the world."

"Well, my dear madam, you must have patience as well as the rest."

"But mine is an urgent case, and I can't wait, because—"

"Well, because what?"

"Because," said she, with a smile on her lip and a tear in her eye, "because I'm going to be married, and I've got to get some things. The man I'm going to marry has not a cent to pay the minister, and he has only one leg, and so I've got to see to everything myself."

The benevolent director dove into his pocket and produced his private purse, out of which he paid her the amount, and she went on her way rejoicing.

Joke on the Judge.

The Pioche (Cal.) Record, of September 10, relates this incident in a police court: About the first case that came up before Bense Van Hagan, our new Justice of the Peace, who took his seat last week, was that of a worthy gentleman who had unfortunately imbibed so freely of the flowing bowl that his social qualities became developed to such an alarming extent as to make the guardians of the public peace feel compelled to provide him with a night's entertainment at public expense. Appearing before his honor the following morning, rather dilapidated as to the outer man, but with a remnant of the evening's drollery gleaming in his eye, he thus accosted him: 'Be as light on me as you can, Judge, I'm tolerably hard up, and—and—you know how it is yourself." Among those who remembered Van in the palmy days of California, the "gayest of the gay," it was believed the point was "well taken."

Grant Tells a Story About Lincoln and A. H. Stephen's Overcoat.

A published statement that Alexander H. Stephens recently lost one of his overcoats at Dahlonega, Ga., has moved the Augusta Constitutionalist to relate the following: This paragraph remind us of an anecdote about Mr. Stephens which Gen. Gordon tells with much unction. Gordon had it from President Grant at Washington. "When the three commissioners met us at Fortress Monroe," says Grant, "Mr. Stephens came swaddled up from top to toe in an enormous overcoat. Lincoln called me aside, as Mr. Stephens was disrobing, and observed:

"Grant, what does that performance of Stephens's remind you of?"

"Mr. President, I do not know; but what does it remind you of?"

"It reminds me," said Lincoln, with one of his queer winks, "of the biggest shuck off the smallest ear I ever saw in my life!"

A Great Italian Journalist.

We believe nobody in this country owns and edits two daily papers 450 miles apart, like Roggers Bonghi, the Italian liberal. He is professor of ancient history in the university of Rome, member of Parliament, and the proprietor and director of the two leading journals, one published at Naples and the other at Milan—the former, known as the "National Union." He has the reputation of being one of the first classical scholars in Italy. He is one of those political actors who are always looking for example to such countries as the United States. Monarchists in principle, they see in a liberal constitutional government, under a crown, many advantages enjoyed by the republic, and in a republic, such as that of the United States or Switzerland, the stability of an enlightened monarchial rule.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That article eight of the constitution be amended, by amending section four thereof, so as to read as follows:

§ 4. The legislature shall, by general law, conform all charters of savings banks, or institutions for savings, to a uniformity of powers, rights and liabilities, and all charters hereafter granted for such corporations shall be made to conform to such general law, and to such amendments as may be made thereto. Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That the following amendment to the constitution be proposed for adoption to the people of the state, viz.:

ARTICLE —.

The commissioners of the canal fund shall borrow, on the credit of the state, such sums as may be necessary for paying the canal and general fund debts now charged on the canals, as the same shall fall due, by the issue and sale of bonds, or certificates of stock, having forty years to run from their date, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, for the payment of the principal whereof at maturity a sinking fund of one per cent per annum shall be established, and the tolls of the canals shall be fixed from time to time by the canal board at rates sufficing, as near as may be, to provide only for said sinking fund the interest on the debt so created, the expenses of collection, superintendence and keeping the canals in repair; and the contribution so created for said sinking fund shall be invested annually by the comptroller in the bonds or certificates of stock authorized by this article, or in the stocks or bonds of the state of New York or of the United States, which shall be held for the redemption and payment of the bonds or certificates herein authorized to be issued and sacredly applied to that purpose; all of said debt and interest shall be paid from the revenues of the canals, and no direct tax shall ever be levied or collected for canal purposes, either for current expenses or repairs, ordinary or extraordinary.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur) That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION proposing an amendment to article seven of the constitution.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That sections three and six of article seven be amended as follows:

Section three to be amended by adding at the end of the section the following:

No extra compensation shall be made to any contractor; but if from any unforeseen cause, the terms of any contract shall prove to be unjust and oppressive, the canal board may, upon the application of the contractor, cancel such contract.

§ 6. The legislature shall not sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the Erie canal, the Oswego canal, the Champlain canal, the Black River canal, or the Cayuga and Seneca canal; but they shall remain the property of the state and under its management forever. Hereafter the expenditure for collections, superintendence, ordinary and extraordinary repairs on the canals named in this section shall not exceed, in any year, their gross receipts for the previous year. All funds that may be derived from any lease, sale or other disposition of any canal shall be applied in payment of the debt for which the canal revenues are pledged.

That the following be added as sections thirteen and fourteen, in place of sections thirteen and fourteen of this article, which have been transferred and inserted as sections twenty-one and twenty-two of article three.

§ 13. The sinking funds provided for the payment of interest and extinguishment of the principal of the debts of the state, shall be separately kept and safely invested, and neither of them shall be appropriated or used in any manner other than for the specific purpose for which it shall have been provided.

§ 14. Neither the legislature, canal board, canal appraisers, nor any person or persons acting in behalf of the state, shall audit, allow or pay any claim which, as between citizens of the state, would be barred by lapse of time. The limitation of existing claims shall begin to run from the adoption of this section; but this provision shall not be construed to revive claims already barred by existing statutes, nor to repeal any statute fixing the time within which claims shall be presented or allowed, nor shall it extend to any claims duly presented within the time allowed by law, and prosecuted with due diligence from the time of such presentment. But if the claimant shall be under legal disability, the claim may be presented within two years after such disability is removed.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that in conformity with section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS proposing amendments to article three of the constitution.

Resolved (if the assembly concur), That sections one, four, five, six, seven and eight of article three of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

ARTICLE III.

SECTION 1. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a senate and assembly.

§ 4. An enumeration of the inhabitants of the state shall be made under the direction of the legislature, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, and in every tenth year thereafter.

§ 5. The assembly shall consist of one hundred and twenty-eight members elected for one year. The members of assembly shall be apportioned among the several counties of the state, by the legislature, as nearly as may be, according to the number of their respective inhabitants, excluding aliens, and shall be chosen by single districts. The assembly districts shall remain as at present organized until after the enumeration of the inhabitants of the state in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five. The legislature, at its first session after the return of every enumeration, shall apportion the members of assembly among the several counties of the state, in manner aforesaid, and the board of supervisors in such counties as may be entitled under such apportionment to more than one member, except the city and county of New York, and in said city and county the board of aldermen of said city shall assemble at such times as the legislature making such apportionment shall prescribe and divide their respective counties into assembly districts, each of which districts shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory equal to the number of members of assembly to which such counties shall be entitled, and shall cause to be filed in the offices of the secretary of state and the clerks of their respective counties a description of such districts, specifying the number of each district, and the population thereof, according to the last preceding enumeration, as near as can be ascertained, and the apportionment and districts shall remain unaltered until another enumeration shall be made as herein provided. No town shall be divided in the formation of assembly districts. Every county heretofore established and separately organized, except the county of Hamilton, shall always be entitled to one member of the assembly, and no new county shall be hereafter erected unless its population shall entitle it to a member. The county of Hamilton shall elect with the county of Fulton until the population of the county of Hamilton shall, according to the ratio, be entitled to a member. But the legislature may abolish the said county of Hamilton and annex the territory thereof to some other county or counties. Nothing in this section shall prevent division at any time of counties and towns, and the erection of new towns and counties by the legislature.

§ 6. Each member of the legislature shall receive for his service an annual salary of one thousand five hundred dollars. The members of either house shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel in going to and returning from their place of meeting, once in each session, on the most usual route. Senators, when the senate alone is convened in extraordinary session, or when serving as members of the court for the trial of impeachments, and such members of the assembly, not exceeding nine in number, as shall be appointed managers of an impeachment, shall receive an additional allowance of ten dollars a day.

§ 7. No member of the legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this state, or the senate of the United States, from the governor, the governor and senate, or from the legislature, or from any city government, during the time for which he shall have been elected; and all such appointments, and all votes given for any such member for any such office or appointment, shall be void.

§ 8. No person shall be eligible to the legislature who at the time of his election is, or within one hundred days previous thereto has been, a member of congress, a civil or military officer under the United States, or an officer under any city government. And if any person shall, after his election as a member of the legislature, be elected to congress or appointed to any office, civil or military under the government of the United States, or under any city government, his acceptance thereof shall vacate his seat.

And that the following additional sections be added to said article three of the constitution:

§ 17. No act shall be passed which shall provide that any existing law, or any part thereof, shall be made or deemed a part of said act, or which shall enact that any existing law, or any part thereof, shall be applicable, except by inserting it in such act.

§ 18. The legislature shall not pass a private or local bill in any of the following cases:

Changing the names of persons.
Laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys, or for draining swamps or other low lands.
Locating or changing county seats.
Providing for changing of venue in civil or criminal cases.
Incorporating villages.
Providing for election of members of boards of supervisors.
Selecting, drawing, summoning or impanneling grand or petit jurors.
Regulating the interest on money.
The opening and conducting of elections or designating places of voting.
Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, percentage or allowance of public officers during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed,
Granting to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down railroad tracks.
Granting to any private corporation, association or individual any exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever.
Providing for building bridges, and chartering companies for such purposes, except on the Hudson river below Waterford, and on the East river, or over the waters forming a part of the boundaries of the state.

The legislature shall pass general laws providing for the cases enumerated in this section, and for all other cases which in its judgment may be provided for by general laws. But no law shall authorize the construction or operation of a street railroad except upon the condition that the consent of the owners of one-half in value of the property bounded on, and the consent also of the local authorities having the control of that portion of a street or highway upon which it is proposed to construct or operate such railroad be first obtained, or, in case the consent of such property-owners cannot be obtained, the general term of the supreme court in the district in which it is proposed to be constructed may, upon application, appoint three commissioners, who shall determine, after a hearing of all parties interested, whether such railroad ought to be constructed or operated, and their determination, confirmed by the court, may be taken in lieu of the consent of the property owners.

§ 19. The legislature shall neither audit nor allow any private claim or account against the state, but may appropriate money to pay such claims as shall have been audited and allowed according to law.

§ 20. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax and the object to which it is to be applied, and it shall not be sufficient to refer to any other law to fix such tax or object.

§ 21. On the final passage, in either house of the legislature, of any act which imposes, continues or revives a tax, or creates a debt or charge, or makes, continues or revives any appropriation of public or trust money or property, or releases, discharges or commutes any claim or demand of the state, the question shall be taken for yeas and nays, which shall be duly entered upon the journals, and three-fifths of all the members elected to either house shall in all such cases be necessary to constitute a quorum therein.

§ 22. There shall be in the several counties, except in cities whose boundaries are the same as those of the county, a board of supervisors, to be composed of such members and elected in such a manner, and for such period, as is or may be provided by law. In any such cities the duties and powers of a board of supervisors may be devolved upon the common council or board of aldermen thereof.

Section seventeen of said article is hereby made section twenty-three of the proposed amendment, and is amended so as to read as follows:

§ 23. The legislature shall, by general laws, confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties of the state such further powers of local legislation and administration as the legislature may from time to time deem expedient.

§ 24. The legislature shall not, nor shall the common council of any city, nor any board of supervisors, grant any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, agent or contractor.

§ 25. Sections seventeen and eighteen of this article shall not apply to any bill or the amendments to any bill which shall be reported to the legislature by commissioners who have been appointed pursuant to law to revise the statutes.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that, in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS proposing amendments to article five of the constitution.

Resolved, (If the assembly concur.) That article five of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

§1. The comptroller and secretary of state shall be chosen at the same general election, and for the same term as the governor. The persons holding the offices at the time at which this section shall take effect shall continue to hold the same until the first day of January next succeeding the first election of comptroller and secretary of state, pursuant to the provisions hereof, and shall each receive a salary to be fixed by law for such time as they may hold such offices beyond the term for which they shall have been elected

§ 2. The attorney-general and state engineer and surveyor shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate, and hold their offices until the end of the term of the governor by whom they shall be nominated, and until their successors are appointed. No person shall be appointed state engineer and surveyor who is not a practical engineer.

§ 3. A superintendent of state prisons shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate, and to hold his office for five years, unless sooner removed; he shall give security in such amount, and with such sureties, as shall be required by law for the faithful discharge of his duties; he shall have the superintendence, management and control of the state prisons, subject to such laws as now exist or may hereafter be enacted; he shall appoint the agents, wardens, physicians and chaplains of the prisons. The agent and warden of each prison shall appoint all other officers of such prison, except the clerk, subject to the approval of the same by the superintendent. The comptroller shall appoint the clerks of the prisons. The superintendent shall have all the powers and perform all the duties not inconsistent herewith, which have heretofore been had and performed by the inspectors of state prisons; and from and after the time when such superintendent of state prisons shall have been appointed and qualified, the office of inspector of state prisons shall be and is hereby abolished. The governor may remove the superintendent for cause at any time, giving to him a copy of the charges against him, and an opportunity to be heard in his defense

§ 4. The treasurer shall be chosen by the senate and assembly in joint ballot, and hold his office for three years, and until his successor shall be chosen and qualified. He shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, give such security as may be required by law. He may be suspended from office by the governor during the recess of the legislature, and until thirty days after the commencement of the next session of the legislature, whenever it shall appear to him that such treasurer, has, in any particular, violated his duty. The governor shall appoint a competent person to discharge the duties of the office during such suspension of the treasurer.

§ 5. The lieutenant governor, comptroller, secretary of state, attorney-general, treasurer and state engineer and surveyor shall be the commissioners of the land office. The office of the commissioner of the canal fund is abolished, and all the powers and duties heretofore had and performed by the commissioners of the canal fund shall hereafter be had or performed by the comptroller. The canal board shall consist of the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, attorney-general, state engineer and surveyor, and superintendent of public works.

§ 6. A superintendent of public works shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate, and to hold his office until the end of the term of the governor by whom he was nominated and until his successor is appointed. He shall receive for his services a compensation to be fixed by law. He shall be required by law to give security for the faithful execution of his office, before entering upon the duties thereof. He shall be charged with the execution of all laws relating to the repair and navigation of the canals; and also of those relating to the construction and improvement of the canals, except so far as the execution of the laws relating to such construction or improvement shall be confided to the state engineer and surveyor. Subject to the control of the legislature, he shall make the rules and regulations for the navigation or use of the canals. He may be suspended or removed from office by the governor, whenever in his judgment the public interest shall so require; but in case of removal of such superintendent of public works from office, the governor shall file with the secretary of state a statement of the cause of such removal, and shall report such removal and the cause thereof, to the legislature at its next session.

§ 7. The superintendent of public works shall appoint not more than three assistant superintendents, whose duties shall be prescribed by him, subject to modification by the legislature, and who shall receive for their services a compensation to be fixed by law. They shall hold their office for three years, subject to suspension or removal by the superintendent of public works, whenever in his judgment the public interest shall so require. Any vacancy in the office of any such assistant superintendent shall be filled, for the remainder of the term for which he was appointed, by the superintendent of public works; but in case of the suspension or removal of any such assistant superintendent by him he shall at once report to the governor, in writing, the cause of such removal. All other persons employed in the care and management of the canals, except collectors of tolls, and those in the department of the state engineer and surveyor, shall be appointed by the superintendent of public works, and be subject to suspension or removal by him.

§ 8. The office of canal commissioner is abolished from and after the appointment and qualification of the superintendent of public works, until which time the canal commissioners shall continue to discharge their duties as now provided by law. The superintendent of public works shall perform all the duties of the canal commissioners, and board of canal commissioners, as now declared by law, until otherwise provided by the legislature.

§ 9. The governor, by and with the consent of the senate, shall have power to fill vacancies, in the offices in this article named except as herein otherwise provided; or, if the senate be not in session, he may grant commissions, which shall expire at the end of the next succeeding session of the senate.

§ 10. The attorney-general, state engineer and surveyor and treasurer, in office at the time this article shall take effect, shall hold their offices until their successors are appointed.

§ 11. The powers and duties of the respective boards, and of the several officers in this article named, shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be such as now are or hereafter may be prescribed by law.

§ 12. All offices for the weighing, gauging, measuring, culling or inspecting any merchandise, produce, manufacture or commodity whatever, are hereby abolished, and no such office shall hereafter be created by law; but nothing in this section contained shall abrogate any office created for the purpose of protecting the public health or the interest of the state in its property, revenue, tolls or purchases, or of supplying the people with correct standards of weights and measures, or shall prevent the creation of any office for such purposes hereafter.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS proposing amendments to article four of the constitution.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur), That sections one, two, four, eight and nine of article four of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. The executive power shall be vested in a governor who shall hold his office for three years; a lieutenant-governor shall be chosen at the same time, and for the same term. The governor and lieutenant-governor elected next preceding the time when this section shall take effect, shall hold office during the term for which they were elected.

§ 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant-governor, except a citizen of the United States, of the age not less than thirty years, and who shall have been five years, next preceding his election, a resident of this state.

§ 4. The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of the state. He shall have power to convene the legislature (or the senate only) on extraordinary occasions. At extraordinary sessions no subject shall be acted upon, except such as the governor may recommend for consideration. He shall communicate by message to the legislature at every session the condition of the state, and recommend such matters to them as he shall judge expedient. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government, civil and military. He shall expedite all such measures as may be resolved upon by the legislature, and shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of ten thousand dollars, and there shall be provided for his use a suitable and furnished executive residence.

§ 8. The lieutenant-governor shall receive for his services an annual salary of five thousand dollars, and shall not receive or be entitled to any other compensation, fee or perquisite, for any duty or service he may be required to perform by the constitution or by law.

§ 9. Every bill which shall have passed the senate and assembly, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it shall have originated, which shall enter the objections at large on the journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent together with the objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of the members elected to that house, it shall become a law notwithstanding the objections of the governor. In all such cases, the votes in both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature shall, by their adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall not become a law without the approval of the governor. No bill shall become a law after the final adjournment of the legislature unless approved by the governor within thirty days after such adjournment. If any bill presented to the governor contain several items of appropriations of money, he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case, he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects; and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money.

Resolved, (if the assembly concur). That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and that, in conformity to section one of article thirteen of the constitution, it be published for three months previous to the time of such election.
